2 Newark Men Confess Aiding Pine Bush Thugs With Car, License Tags

Admission Includes Statement That Loot From Bank Was to Have Been Divided at Palumbo's Home in Newark.

AGENT OF HUNGE R

Troopers Who Are Pressing Search at Otisville Think Starvation Will Bring Forth Two Men.

Newark, N. J., May 14 (AP)—Deputy Chief John Haller today announced the arrest of three Newark men in connection with the holdup of an Erie Railroad train April 17 at Nutley.

The men, held at police headquarters, were booked as Peter Guarino, alias Pete Russo, 30, of 334 North Tenth street; Robert Landon, 30, of 19 North Sixth street, and Alex Palumbo, 27, of 84 Tichenor street.

Haller said Landon and Palumbo admitted supplying a stolen car and stolen license plate to the gang which robbed the Pine Bush National Bank at Pine Bush, N. Y., of $14,155 last Monday.

Guarino was picked from a police lineup by witnesses to the train holdup in which five men armed with revolvers and a sub-machine gun seized $900, Haller said.

Guarino, described as a former night club operator, was arrested at his home Tuesday. He had been at liberty since March 4 under $7,500 bail on eight charges of robbery in Essex, Bergen and Union counties, Haller declared.

Landon and Palumbo were taken into custody Monday at their homes Haller quoted Landon as saying the Pine Bush loot was to have been divided at Palumbo's home.

The automobile used in the bank holdup and later found abandoned in New York state was stolen from Rita Boschia of 448 South Tenth street April 2, while the license tags were reported taken the following day from the automobile of Henry Scholl of 74 South Sixth street, police records disclosed.

Starvation an Ally

Middletown, N. Y., May 14 (AP)—From headquarters in the Erie Railroad station at Otisville, State Troopers today directed a broad search for two of the Pine Bush National Bank robbers still believed to be armed and hiding near the New York-New Jersey state line.

With two suspects under arrest and a third dead by his own hand, troopers said they thought hunger would soon drive the fugitives into the open if they were still in this region.

Although 24 hours had passed since the gunfight in which the second and third suspects were taken, Major John A. Warner, superintendent of state police, showed no disposition to relax his search for the two men still sought. A fresh force of troopers was sent into the area today, Warner said.

"Tips" were received over the telephone at the Otisville Railroad station at the rate of almost one a minute today, and troopers adopted a policy of acting on all that appeared promising.

Two train riders were arrested at Graham and questioned. A paroled convict was picked up in Middletown for questioning.

Over $8,000 Recovered

State police said more than $8,000 of the $13,000 stolen from the Pine Bush bank Monday had been recovered.

They made public today police records they said had been obtained for the three suspects so far captured. They are:

Stewart Wallace, 56, arrested on a back road Monday night: Suspected of connection with a $188,000 bank robbery at Reading, Pa. (Reading, Pa., sources also linked a man of his description with the robbery of the Wyomissing Bank there in 1921.)

John J. Mahoney, 36, who shot himself rather than submit to state police in a gunfight yesterday, and died later: Sentenced to three years in Massachusetts State Prison at Charlestown in 1925, for breaking and entering; arrested in Boston in 1930 as a suspicious person and larceny suspect, later released; arrested in Manhattan in 1932 as a possessor of narcotics, suspended sentence.

Archie Stewart, alias John Stewart, 34, wounded in yesterday's gunfight: House of Refuge, New York city, for juvenile delinquency in 1918; sentenced to Sing Sing prison in 1919 for term of several years for robbery with a gun in Manhattan; arrested for assault and robbery and as a fugitive at other times, but charges dismissed; indicted in Bergen county, N. J., for the $16,000 holdup of the First National Bank of Fort Lee, December 20, 1935.

"Members of Arsenal Gang"

Lieutenant E. L. Heaman said Stewart was also believed to be a member of the "arsenal gang" in New York city.

Troopers with bloodhounds followed a laborious trail in the foothills of the Shawangunk mountains near the New Jersey line in an effort to capture the remaining fugitives.

As in the previous capture of Stewart Wallace, 56, the first suspect, a gun battle marked the encounter between two troopers and

Small Tornado Hits Esopus Valley, Razes Buildings; Hail Ruins Fruit and Truck Crops

Residents of Riverside Park Take to Cellars When Swirling Black and Yellow Clouds Swoop Down Suddenly—Barn Burns Near Ellenville—Property and Crops Loss Amounts to Many Thousands Dollars—Severe Electrical Storm in Kingston, Heavy Rain, Hail.

Wire, Hit By Bolt, Burns Streak In Library Lawn

Another severe electrical storm broke over Kingston shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday evening, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain. At the height of the storm a lightning bolt struck one of the wires of the street lighting circuit directly in front of the city hall on Broadway, snapping the heavily charged electric wire in two.

One end of the wire fell on the lawn of the City Library, and the electricity in the wire burned a black, curved streak in the lawn about six feet long and two inches wide.

One of the city busses was on the way up Broadway at the time the wire was snapped in two and as the wire fell to the pavement in front of the bus it writhed and twisted on the pavement, emitting a quantity of sparks. The fallen wire as it twisted about on the pavement resembled a huge black snake. The bus driver turned his bus into the city hall driveway and reported the fallen wire to the police who notified the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., and in a brief time the repair crew was on hand, making repairs.

Wednesday afternoon a miniature tornado swept along the lower Esopus valley and did many thousands of dollars of damage to crops, buildings were blown down and public utilities suffered considerable damage. The center of the storm apparently was in the vicinity of Riverside Park, just beyond old Hurley village, where a real "twister" razed buildings and the accompanying hail cut vegetation to shreds.

During the height of the storm residents of Riverside Park who had watched the dark black clouds turn to a threatening yellow, took to their cellars in the belief that the section was about to be visited by a real tornado which might bring down their homes. Hail fell in huge quantities and there was great damage to fruit blossoms and early fruit which had just set.

After a day of intensive heat and humidity storm clouds began to gather early in the afternoon and about 3:30 o'clock the storm came on. The twister was accompanied by a heavy downpour and hail as large as walnuts fell to a considerable depth. In fact after the storm subsided it was possible to scoop up the hailstones by the pailful.

Ellenville Barn Burns

Lightning that struck the property of Fred Fuchs twice within a week near Ellenville destroyed his barn and a team of horses which he valued at $500. The chimney of his house was struck last week. Lightning previously had destroyed two barns on the Fuchs farm.

A Kingston man driving to New Paltz shortly before six o'clock Wednesday evening reports that he saw no sign of hail until he reached that village.

Hot House Damaged

He was told that there had been a very heavy fall of hail which apparently seemed to center in that section. Raymond M. Hasbrouck, the florist whose place is on the road between New Paltz and Highland, reported heavy damage to his hot house, estimating his loss at around $300.

The hail stones were very irregular in shape and large. Miss LeFevre of the New Paltz Independent staff told of measuring one hailstone that was three inches in length.

Several Storms

There were several storms from the north, west and south and apparently they met over the Esopus valley in that section lying between Stone Ridge and Kingston. Trees were uprooted, flowers and vegetation destroyed by the hail and at Riverside Park the uncompleted house owned by Charles Joy was blown down. One of the large chicken coops of Richard Warren was razed but 1,000 chickens on the farm escaped, they fortunately were not in the coop which was blown down.

Windows, Roofs Suffer

Many windows were broken by the huge hail stones and in the house of Harold Blanshan at Riverside Park a large number of panes of glass were broken and the shingles were blown from the house. Some of the residents report that the hail stones were so large and were blown with such force against roofs that the roofs were dented in as though large rocks had been thrown against them.

Although there was considerable lightning accompanying the storm no reports have been received of damage by buildings being struck.

Bush Paint Ruined

The home of Jerry Bush which had just been painted presented a most discouraging sight after the storm. Leaves which had been cut from trees were plastered so thickly against the newly painted house that the house appeared to have just had a coat of green paint. A large hickory tree in the yard of Mr. Newmann was blown down and half of the large maple tree in the yard of Bates' Wayside Tourist Inn was blown down but missed the house.

Heavy Damage to Crops

The damage to crops cannot be estimated but the damage by hail was exceptionally severe. Garden crops were ruined by the hail and flower gardens were riddled. At the large apple orchards of Ray Elmendorf at Hurley the damage was great. Fruit trees in the path of the storm were very badly damaged and blossoms were sheared from the trees. This damage was particularly heavy at this time of year since the protection which fruit will acquire as the foliage becomes thicker later in the season was missing.

Plank Road Damage

Beyond Stone Ridge the damage apparently was not so great but there was much damage to the market gardens on the Kingston Plank along the Plank road. Many of the market gardeners had just completed the planting of early vegetable plants

5 Convicts Flee McAlester Prison And Abduct Farmer

McAlester, Okla., May 14 (AP)—Five convicts fleeing from McAlester prison with two wounded guards, abducted William Doaks of near Pittsburg early today after forcing Mrs. Doaks to prepare breakfast for them, Undersheriff W. O. Merrill reported.

The five, Merrill said, were those who killed A. D. Powell, penitentiary brickyard foreman, and escaped in a guard's automobile during a bloody break from the prison yesterday, in which 24 convicts took part. Three others are at large.

Merrill said the news of the abduction of the farmer was brought to McAlester by Mike Isabel, a merchant at Pittsburg, who had talked to Mrs. Doaks.

Prison Secretary Fred Daugherty said the five convicts with Doaks and the two guards as hostages seized another car and split into two parties east of Blanco, Okla., 20 miles southwest of McAlester.

He said that the two cars had been seen with only one hostage, believed to be Doaks. He said the guards were thought to have been thrown from the speeding automobile.

The two carloads of fleeing convicts were heading toward the Arkansas border, Daugherty said reports indicated. Posses spread out over the Kiamichi Mountains in an attempt to head them off.

Fifteen prison guards searched through the hills near Antlers for two of the convicts reported seen there at 2:30 a. m., Warden Roy Kenny said.

Another posse of prison guards and officers searched the Brush around Stewart for one or more felons reported sighted there.

From one of the recaptured prisoners, retaken after the knife-flashing break from the prison brickyard, the warden learned that one of the two hostage guards, Tuck Cope, was wounded.

The other captive guard was Victor Conn.

The warden questioned Jerry Stringfellow, 27, serving 25 years for robbery.

"I heard Cope say he was shot," the warden quoted Stringfellow as saying, "and he asked them to throw him out, like they did Powell."

Powell was shot through the head and tossed out of the automobile as the convicts fled.

Four long-term convicts named by Kenny probable leaders of the break were:

Claude Beavers, serving 25 years for robbery; Archie Herring, serving ten years for robbery; Jess Cunningham, serving life for murder, and Bill Anderson, serving 27 years for robbery.

Bloodhounds were sent to Antlers to take up the trail of the two fugitives.

John B. Sterley Is Police Commissioner

40,300 Candlepower To Be Added To Lighting System Here On June 1

There Will be That Much More Candlepower Without Additional Cost to City Under Provisions of New Lighting Contract.

OTHER MATTERS

City Parks To Open May 25; Traffic Lights, Trees Planted Among Topics Discussed.

Under the provisions in the new street lighting contract between the city and the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation there will be an additional 40,300 candlepower added to the street lighting system without additional cost to the city on June 1. A similar additional amount of candlepower will also be added to the street lighting circuit in June of 1937. That fact was brought out at the meeting of the Board of Public Works on Wednesday evening when the Central Hudson filed with the board a survey of the street lighting system with recommendations where the increased lighting should be added. This additional lighting does not mean new lights, but that the candlepower in the present lights will be increased.

The survey covered the entire city, and the additional candlepower will be spread over all sections of the city. The survey was accepted by the board and the electric corporation will be notified to replace the smaller bulbs with larger bulbs in the places recommended in the survey.

At the present time the city has approximately 1,265 street lights installed with a total candlepower of 467,071. After June 1, the number of street lights will not be increased but the candlepower will be increased to 507,371.

The city's street lighting costs $51,397.43 annually under the terms of the contract with the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation.

Shade For Lights

Some time ago the board decided it would not grant any requests to have street lights shaded by painting one side of the globe black. Residents who desired the lights shaded said that the light shone into the bedroom windows, making it difficult to get to sleep.

It was brought out last night that the Central Hudson is trying out a new type of shade which is placed inside the light bulb and is not visible from the street, unless one looked close enough. By means of this shade the light is deflected and shines directly down upon the street or sidewalks. This new shade is now being tried out on Orchard street.

If it proves successful in accomplishing the results desired it may be used in cases where requests are made to have street lamps shaded on one side.

City Parks Open

Superintendent David Conway reported that the playground equipment would be installed and the city parks ready to open for the season on Monday, May 25.

Want Walks Built

Residents of Mountain View avenue filed a petition requesting the board to consider the installation of new concrete sidewalks and stone retaining walls on that street, between Pearl street and Lounsbery Place, the property owners to pay the complete cost of all materials required.

The petition was referred to City Engineer James Norton to see if the work could not be done as a PWA project.

To Raze Property

The old Kelder property on Gross street, which is a two-story frame tenement house, will be taken down by the board and the materials salvaged. The matter of demolishing the building which was badly damaged by fire some time ago, was referred to the city engineer.

Stick to Estimate

At the last meeting of the board Superintendent Conway and Commissioner Roach estimated that it would cost at least $25,000 a mile to construct streets in the city. That estimate was thought too high by George W. Nichols in a letter to The Freeman which was recently printed.

Last night Mr. Nichols's letter was read at the meeting, and both Mr. Conway and Commissioner

Budget, Half-Million Fund, Permanent Relief Aid Voted; Albany Vote Probe Bill Lost

Assemblyman Conway's Resolution for Investigation of Illegal Registration and Voting in Albany Fails 106-19.

"YOU CAN'T TAKE IT"

"You People in Ulster County Just Can't Take It," Says Steingut to J. Edward Conway.

Albany, May 14 (Special)—The Assembly, by vote of 19 to 106, early Wednesday night defeated a resolution introduced by Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, of Kingston, which would have called for an investigation of "frequent charges... made in the public press of illegal registration and voting in the city of Albany".

Assemblyman Conway, and Assemblyman Maurice E. Whitney, Republican of Rensselaer county, Paul Fromer of Greene, and J. Maxwell Knapp, Sullivan, were the only members from the third judicial district who voted for the resolution.

Despite the fact that Republican members of the Assembly would have liked to go along with Mr Conway's resolution, all but 19 of them felt that the procedure by which the investigation committee would be set up, would establish a "bad precedent", and accordingly voted in opposition. The entire Democratic faction of the lower House, naturally voted against the resolution, which would have brought a probe into the registration and voting of the Democratic-controlled county and city of Albany.

Dangerous Precedent

Under Assemblyman Conway's resolution, the committee would consist of five Assemblymen, appointed by Speaker Irving M. Ives, of Norwich, to report its findings by February first, 1937. Such a resolution would only need to pass one House of the Legislature, since it does not call for a joint investigation committee of both Senate and Assembly; but it was pointed out by Assemblyman Horace M. Stone, Republican of Onondaga county, that a "one sided" committee such as this, would establish a dangerous precedent, and would enable anyone with a grudge to have one House back a plan to conduct a prying investigation.

Assemblyman Stone, reluctantly declaring he felt impelled to oppose the Conway resolution, maintained an investigation committee such as is proposed in the measure should have members of both the Senate and Assembly on it, and that the resolution should carry an appropriation. No appropriation of legislative funds is called for under Mr. Conway's resolution.

"If and when an investigation of Albany county is had, and I think it should be," said the Onondaga County assemblyman, "it should be done in proper form, and not by only one branch of the Legislature, by private funds."

"There is plenty of reason for this resolution," he continued, "but it is not in proper form. Such a committee, backed by private funds, would be looked upon as political, and would not have the probative powers as would a regular legislative committee."

Mr. Conway, in urging support of his measure, declared he introduced it at the request of the people of the Third Judicial District, who felt that there were, at the last election, so many illegal votes cast in Albany county, that the entire Judicial district was swayed.

Answering this point, Assemblyman Irwin Steingut, Democratic minority leader of Brooklyn, asserted that the motive back of the Conway resolution was retaliation, because of fact that last year the Democrats nominated and later elected to the Supreme Court bench, a Democratic candidate, instead of endorsing the sitting judge, former Justice Ellis J. Staley, a Republican.

"You people in Ulster county just can't 'take it,'" said Mr. Steingut.

The Democratic leader further attacked Mr. Conway for introducing a measure affecting a county other than his own, at which point considerable laughter at Mr. Steingut's expense was occasioned, when it was remarked that last year at the request of Postmaster General James A. Farley, the Democrats of Senate and Assembly passed a bill abolishing the office of Ulster county superintendent of highways. It was afterward vetoed by the governor.

It will also be remembered that a similar bill affecting the job of the Putnam county highways superintendent was sponsored last year when the Democrats were in control of both Houses.

Assemblyman Conway, continuing his speech to urge passage of his resolution, asserted that 62 per cent of the population in the city of Albany voted last year, while the average in other cities is 35 per cent.

"What is the reason for the large percentage of voting in the city of Albany, compared to other communities in the state?" asked the Ulster county Assemblyman.

"The people in my county feel they are being deprived of the honest vote they cast by the illegal ones offered in Albany city and county," he continued. "We have been hearing a great deal this session about crime legislation, yet here is more of a crime in the shadow of the capitol, than has been touched upon in any debate we have had here," he maintained.

"There is no reason why the will of the majority should be illegally and corruptedly thwarted," Mr. Conway concluded.

HIS BILL DEFEATED

Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, of this city, who was butt of Democratic Leader Steingut's jibe, "You people of Ulster county just can't take it," when his vote probe bill was defeated.

Lord Allenby Dead, Britain's Soldier Hero of Palestine

London, May 14 (AP)—Lord Allenby, Britain's soldier hero of Palestine, died suddenly today at his Kensington home. He was 75 years old.

The last of the empire's outstanding military leaders of the World War, the viscount and field marshal led the triumphal allied entry into Jerusalem, but lived to renounce "the glory of conquest with its gain of dead sea fruit."

That renunciation came less than a month ago when, at his installation as Lord Rector of Edinburgh University, advocated establishment of a world police force for the maintenance of world peace.

That, too, was his last public appearance.

Except for his functions on state occasions, when he served as gold stick-in-waiting, Lord Allenby had taken little part in public life since he returned from Egypt in 1925.

His ancient title enabled him to walk close behind the king.

So far as the public knew, the great soldier had been in normal health recently. He appeared heaty when he spoke at Edinburgh April 28.

At 12.30 p. m. today, the viscount was in his study when he collapsed. He died almost instantly, a member of the household said.

Allenby followed his war-time sovereign, King George V, in death by less than four months.

Five other British World War figures have passed away within the last year. The were Viscount Byng of Vimy, Arthur Henderson, Sir Edward Carson, Earl Jellicoe and Earl Beatty.

Supplemental Budget Provides Funds for Branches of Government Not Included in Main Outlay; Uses for Appropriations.

1937 FORECAST

Dunnigan Says Lehman Is Formidable Candidate, Democrats Will Win Control, G.O.P. Leaderless.

Albany, N. Y., May 14 (AP)—New York's legislature ended its longest session since 1911 as the sun rose today, after a 21-hour burst of bill passing and killing, at 7:14 a. m.

In the gruelling home stretch the Republican-controlled Assembly rejected Governor Lehman's eight-point program to bring New York in line with the federal Social Security Act.

Nevertheless, both houses approved reducing old age pensions requirements from 70 to 65 years. The bill bore a Republican label, but in effect it was the same as the first section of the governor's program.

Weary legislators, harassed by 19 weeks of continuous work, had to be led back to their seats time after time to finish action on hundreds of last minute bills.

A dozen or more required treatment at the capitol hospital, for exhaustion, but there was no serious illness. One or two had minor injuries.

The final session saw approval of:

A proposal to investigate communism in the schools.

A state milk advertising program.

Permanent Relief System

A permanent unemployment relief system.

A requirement that a sign be attached to every bar beer tap so the customer can know the kind of beer he is buying.

Although the adjournment was taken amid smiles by both Democrats and Republicans and protestations of personal friendship, Senator John J. Dunnigan, the Democratic Senate leader, renewed partisan warfare within 10 minutes after adjournment.

"Governor Lehman's record makes him the most formidable candidate for reelection that he has ever been," Dunnigan said. He added that the governor and the Democrats had supported the national administration and President Roosevelt "in a manner that bring great credit to our party, our state and the nation."

He predicted that the Democrats would recapture the Assembly this fall, and thereby control both houses.

In the closing hour Republican Assemblyman James J. Wadsworth jabbed in a joking way at Governor Lehman, with whom he fought bitterly over social security.

When Wadsworth was named to a committee to notify Mr. Lehman the session was nearly over, he said to Speaker Irving M. Ives.

"I am happy, Mr. Speaker, that you did not choose to send me to the governor without a bodyguard."

Among Accomplishments

Among the legislature's accomplishments were:

Passage of a $233,500,000 executive budget, $15,000,000 less than Governor Lehman had requested.

Reduction of the state gas tax from four cents to three cents.

Passage of a bill to put unemployment relief on a permanent basis in the department of social welfare, and a $30,000,000 relief bond issue subject to approval by the voters in November. (The state has appropriated nearly a quarter of a billion for relief since 1931.)

Thirty-six measures designed to make punishment of the criminal more swift and sure, a major issue raised by Governor Lehman at the outset of the session.

Appropriations Approved

Appropriations totalling over a half million dollars were approved during the closing hours of the legislature today, in addition to the $233,694,724 supplemental budget.

The total $540,150 goes to 27 commissions and state departments for a variety of purposes.

The supplemental budget provides funds for the legislature, judicial, executive branches of government not included in the main state budget.

The appropriations for the commissions are derived from the state's contingent fund.

Among the major appropriations was one for $50,000 for expenses of the state world's fair commission.

Others called for:

$100,000 for the joint committee on motor carriers and transportation.

$15,000 for a committee to investigate banking investment trusts.

$2,500 for a joint legislative committee to prepare for the celebration of the anniversary of baseball at Cooperstown.

Hindenburg Breaks All Atlantic Records

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

(Copyright, 1936, By Associated Press)

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, May 14—Surpassing all records for both eastward and westward commercial crossings of the Atlantic, the giant German Zeppelin Hindenburg touched ground at 5:45 a. m. (11:45 p. m., Wednesday, E. S. T.) to end its first flight from America.

The official flying time for the voyage from Lakehurst, N. J., was given as 49 hours, three minutes, during which the great air cruiser covered 6,670 kilometers (4,168.75 miles).

With its landing mechanism functioning perfectly, the Hindenburg rested in its vast new hangar by 6:10 a. m., (12:10 a. m., E. S. T.), signalizing completion of its maiden round-trip between Germany and the United States with passengers, mails and freight.

(The Hindenburg's return flight in official flying time of 49 hours, three minutes bettered the previous record for a lighter-than-air craft voyage from America to Germany, set by the Graf Zeppelin in August, 1929, with a 54-hour trip.

The French Liner Normandie holds the ship record of four days, 11 hours, 42 minutes).

Dr. Hugo Eckener and Captain Ernst Lehmann were given silver cups from State Governor Jacob Sprenger in an official reception.

The captain, speaking in the name of the Hindenburg's crew, replied to the greetings during the reception.

Despite previous reports from Zeppelin headquarters that all would be well when the veteran "admiral of the air" returned, Eckener's name was omitted again from the report of the official German News Agency and newspapers which printed an interview with Lehmann.

The Hindenburg, which lifted into the air from Lakehurst at 10:27½ p. m., E. S. T., Monday, crossed England 30 miles north of London last night, swung over the Netherlands and passed down the west border of Germany, arriving over its base at 4:55 a. m., (10:55 p. m., Wednesday, E. S. T.) and circled about before landing efficiently, 50 minutes later.

To Figure Earth Curvature

The curvature of the earth in a mile is about eight inches. It varies as the square of the distance, that is, the curvature in two miles is four times eight inches, or 32 inches. How far away is the natural horizon to a man standing and looking over level ground or water? If the man's eyes are five feet above ground, and no allowance is made for the refraction of the atmosphere, the horizon that he sees is two and three-quarters miles away. Owing to the refraction, however, the distance is actually greater. If interested in pursuing the subject, write to the United States geodetic survey, Washington, D. C., for the corrections for curvature and refraction used in firing long-range guns and in navigation.

Kingston College Women's Club Meeting

The Kingston College Women's Club held one of the most interesting meetings of the year Tuesday evening at Mrs. Finch's Tea Room, 17 Pearl street. It was the fourth of the meetings to be conducted by one of the club's special study groups. The program was in charge of the Book Discussion Group, under the direction of Miss Mary E. Noone. Miss Ione Kinkade gave a short review of Furnas' "The Next Hundred Years," a book which had particularly appealed to her because of its fresh approach to its study of the things that still remain to be done in the field of science.

The major part of the discussion was devoted to "The Last Puritan" by George Santayana. Miss May Quimby summarized the plan of the book, while Miss Mary Staples reviewed the life of the author, emphasizing especially his boyhood and career as a professor of philosophy at Harvard until his retirement over twenty years ago to a life of isolation and detached contemplation in Italy, where he has since lived. Mrs. Dorr Monroe reviewed the character of Oliver Alden, the last Puritan, showing by quotation the ways in which he was the mouthpiece for Santayana's philosophical teachings. In sharp contrast to Oliver's intense sense of duty was his cousin Mario's carefree attitude which was explained by Mrs. Harry Halverson. Mrs. Raymond Lewis told of the style of the book and the painstaking care with which it was written and explained that the critics agreed it was a real triumph for a philosopher to have written a successful novel. Since Santayana is also a poet of note his prose is characterized by a beautiful lyrical quality and a diction little short of perfect.

At a short business meeting preceding the discussion, plans were discussed for a series of lectures and officers were elected for the coming year. Those chosen were president, Mrs. William Hasbrouck; first vice president, Mrs. John L. MacKinnon; second vice president, Mrs. Myron Teller; corresponding secretary, Mrs. James Betts; recording secretary, Mrs. John Claire; and treasurer, Miss Ethel Mauterstock. It was also announced that the committee had completed arrangements for the picnic to be held June 9, at Watson Hollow Inn. A buffet supper will be served. Each member will answer to a get-acquainted roll with a limerick, a bit of doggerel, a story or by telling of a hobby.

Refreshments were served and the members enjoyed a very nice social hour. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Ward Brigham, Mrs. Chester C. Chilton, Mrs. C. B. King, Mrs. Albert Kurdt, Mrs. Lloyd LaFevre, Miss Elsie Rice, Mrs. Clifford Rose, Mrs. Howard St. John, Mrs. Arnold van Laer, Mrs. Howard Van Winkle.

The full slate of elected officers is: President, Gordon A. Craig; vice president, Everett V. K. Schutt; secretary, Edsell P. Flowers; treasurer, George Kenny; chaplain, the Rev. Chester A. Chilton.

Meetings during the summer months will be discontinued, to resume in the fall when activities will be undertaken for the betterment of the youth of Kingston.

Verdict of No Cause Of Action Returned

A verdict of no cause of action was returned this morning in Supreme Court in the negligence action brought by Jack Morentz, as administrator of the estate of Diana Morentz, against Dr. Andrew Green Foord. The action was brought to recover for the death of the five-year-old child who was fatally injured last November when struck on the village street of Ellenville by one of the milk trucks owned by the defendant. John A. Bonomi appeared for the plaintiff and asked that the verdict be set aside and that motion was denied by Justice Foster. He then moved for a stay and this was granted. A. J. Cook appeared for defendant.

A jury was then taken in an action brought by Harry Gerow against Winfield T Jenkins, an action in tort to recover damages for alienation of affection. Both parties come from southern Ulster. After the jury had been selected Justice Foster announced a short recess and during the recess parties got together and when court convened the jurors were dismissed from service, the complaint was dismissed and a settlement arrived at. Max Levinson appeared for plaintiff and A J Cook for defendant.

The termination of the alienation of affections case left the court without a case ready at the morning session and a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

Mrs Grace DeWitt, of Gardiner, critically injured after her car struck the rear end of a truck on the Boston Post Road near Marlboro, Mass., early Wednesday, remained consciousness today for the first time since the accident.

Surgeons took 16 stitches to close scalp wounds suffered by her daughter, Marjorie, 6. Another daughter, Janice, 4, was not seriously injured

Three Boys Arrested For Several Thefts

Several weeks ago the Goodsell brick mould factory on East Union street was broken into and an electric drill and other tools stolen from the plant, which has not been operating lately About the same time several auto owners reported that while their cars were parked on the streets in Ponckhockie that auto tools and other articles in the cars had been taken The mushroom plant was also visited and articles stolen

The police department has been working for some time in an effort to solve the cases, and yesterday recovered a number of articles that had been stolen including the electric drill, a large quantity of tools umbrellas, fishing tackle, rubber boots and other articles, including flashlights

Three young boys all under 16 years of age were arrested by the police and held for appearance in children's court

According to the police some of the stolen articles were found in the possession of the boys, and some were recovered hidden in a vacant lot in Ponckhockie

The first break the police had in solving the case was when two of the boys under arrest were picked up by Albany police recently after they had been reported missing In the possession of the boys was found several jackknives that answered the description of knives reported stolen from automobiles

"Son" of Shakespeare

Sir William Davenant was baptized at Oxford in 1606 and his paternity was seriously attributed to William Shakespeare. Davenant himself did nothing to discourage the legend and let it help him acquire a considerable reputation as an actor in Shakespearean roles. He was the first to present Romeo and Juliet with a woman in the cast. This original Juliet was Mary Saunderson afterward Mrs Thomas Betterton. In Shakespeare's own time, boy actors played all feminine roles.

Davenant introduced the word opera into the English language. He used it to designate Shakespearean and other spoken dramas as plays and theaters had fallen in disfavor during the Puritan rule of Cromwell

WHERE WINNERS LOSE.

It is natural that professional military men should think and write militarily, although we have some notable exceptions in this country such as General Butler and Admiral Sims, who use their influence in behalf of peace. Admiral Bradley A Fiske is not of this modern type, but runs true to form. He sees great merit in military ideals and action "It is a fact," he argues, "that after a nation has gone through a successful war, the energy lasts for a considerable period after the war has ceased."

So? It may be, in a small and righteous war. But how about a great conflict, whether righteous or unrighteous—the World War for example? France, Britain, Italy and America won that war. They did what they set out to do—crushed the countries that started it. They succeeded. And what then?

For 18 years France has been struggling to emerge from the ruins in which the war left her. Most of these have been years of great financial distress. She devalued her currency and must devalue it again. Politically she is today almost on the point of collapse. Britain has struggled frantically, with the greatest debt in her history, to revive her industries and hold her world empire together. Italy has floundered from crisis to crisis, sacrificed all her political liberties and been forced by economic pressure to a costly new war venture in Africa. The United States, ballooning into a false prosperity, lost her war profits and moral standards and is still trying to beat back to a normal life. The losers are all worse off.

"When a nation is fighting for its life," says Admiral Fiske, "every mental, moral and physical energy is aroused and used." Yes—used up. And most people today in civilized countries, especially most young people, are coming to see the foolishness of it. There are plenty of normal and rational things to fight for. Civilized man's war with Nature is not yet won, and will not be until every human being willing to behave himself and play his fair part in society can live in security and comfort. Warfare is the greatest obstacle to such a rational ideal.

GOOD WILL GOLF

Hiroshi Saito, Japanese ambassador to the United States, has invited Robert T. Jones—better known as Bobby Jones, the former golf champion—to visit Japan as an "ambassador of good will." Japanese golfers, it seems, have a keen wish to give this hero a big welcome and a good time. The visit will have a double purpose. Ambassador Saito hopes it "will not only enhance the standard of Japanese golfdom, but surely contribute to the international friendship between our two peoples." Which purpose will be the more successfully served, time will show.

It is strange what simple things go on in a world fairly rocking with catastrophes, actual or threatened. We may smile at the idea of setting up such good-will efforts against the potent causes of war. But until treaty-making and diplomatic maneuvering show signs of getting somewhere, peace lovers need not abandon any of the simple, kindly approaches to the goal of a warless world.

BOX CAR BATHERS

There were only 19 delegates and Jeff Davis, self-styled King of the Hobos, at the opening of the 25th annual convention of the Itinerant Workers Union, Hobos of America. But they didn't lack a program. They let themselves be known as favoring de luxe box cars with benches, bathing tanks and a penny-a-mile fare. The king said he was willing and ready to take the matter up with the "high muckety-mucks."

Be that how it may, hoboes are rarely underrated. But is it not something new under the sun for hoboes to be demanding baths and an opportunity to pay fare, however low? This must be evidence of something or other; but whether it means rapid economic recovery, or a toughening of hobo character, or the result of the government's efforts in behalf of homeless transients, who knows?

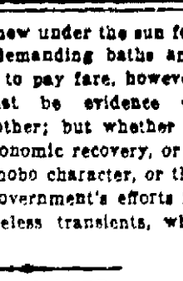
HELP WANTED.

A reader sends to a newspaper editor an advertisement he claims to have found in a recent scientific journal. It reads:

WANTED—Laboratory technician, college graduate at least three years' experience in bacteriology, chemistry, serology and hemotology. Applicant should be able to type and translate scientific German and French articles. Salary $55 per month, living out.

The saddest thing about this is that the advertiser probably got his man, in spite of expecting so much from an experienced technician at so little pay. There has been much unemployment among men trained for scientific work as well as among industrial workers.

That Body of Yours



By James W. Barton, M.D.

THE MENTAL PATIENT

When a patient consults a physician, the physician is not satisfied with what the examination reveals, but asks the patient a number of questions and encourages him to tell all about his symptoms—where the pain is located, whether the pain is sharp or dull, just when it comes on, what seems to make it worse and what seems to relieve or at least make it easier to bear. If it is not a pain then it may be a "heaviness," a discomfort or other feeling that should not be present.

By putting together the objective symptoms, the symptoms he found by the examination—the temperature, the pulse, any sounds that shouldn't be present, any lumps that are not normal, the blood pressure, the richness of the blood in iron or lime or both, and then learns the subjective symptoms from the patient, as mentioned above, the physician makes up his mind just what ailment is present, and treats the patient accordingly.

But this, until recently, has not been the method of examining a mental patient. The usual physical examination was made but if the patient were shy, did not like to talk about his fancies, his difficulties, his desires, he was not encouraged to any extent to tell everything that was on his mind. Today, however, the physical examination is made as usual but the patient is encouraged to tell everything. If he seems to be "sidestepping" or avoiding a certain subject he is kindly but firmly questioned along these subjects.

This means that the patient really does most of the talking and once started will "let loose" and speak about conflicts, difficulties, and other subjects he has heretofore kept hidden.

Dr. M. W. Peck in the New England Journal of Medicine says that while this method requires patience and skill on the part of the physician "it brings out things which the patient wishes to talk about but is unable to put into words, and also what he does not wish to face squarely and tries to avoid. These things, by his telling of them, straighten themselves out to a great extent in his mind. The patient has seen something of himself instead of having been told something about himself, by the physician.

Dr. Peck further states that the general practitioner, the family doctor, can help a considerable number of these cases, without the need of calling the mental specialists into consultation.

AERIAL EAGLE HUNTER SLAYS BIRDS IN PAIRS

San Angelo, Texas (AP)—"When you kill an eagle," says Ray Baumgardner, Fort Stockton aviator who hunts the birds by airplane, "its mate comes to see what has happened and is slain easily."

Baumgardner says eagles have been causing more losses among lambs than have coyotes.

"An eagle carries its kill to the nest of its young. One of the pair stays on the nest while the other hunts and when the one on scout returns the other takes its place," he said.

Baumgardner estimates the top speed of an eagle at 60 miles an hour.

Gypsy Weather

By MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS. Dirk Joris is having his sister-in-law, Hope, shadowed with the idea of finding out what mysterious errand took her out of the old Joris estate early one morning. Rupert Joris, married Hope knowing nothing at all about her, what little Dirk knows does not help clear the mystery surrounding her somewhat to Dirk's surprise, Hope is a success with all the Joris friends somewhat to his own dismay, he finds himself thinking about her often—too often.

Chapter 20

RODEO

DIRK was to wonder in the succeeding days if Hope had somehow divined his arrangement with Martin, for she went nowhere during the day.

Nothing happened. Certainly the watchers at the gate were discovering no reason for being there Dirk thought of discharging them, still calling himself a fool, then, in a recurring mood of caution, permitted them to remain But he made up his mind to keep them only a month longer

One evening, coming home early, and entering the library, he found Hope at the telephone. She put the receiver casually, though quickly, into place, greeting him in a low voice The room was almost dark, and he could not see her face.

"Take me to the rodeo?" she asked.

Dirk, drawing off his gloves, was aware of a tension, a disquiet, in the room. He asked when the rodeo was to be.

"It begins tomorrow," she told him "Madison Square Garden. The two weeks before the horse-show. I want to go the evening of the twenty-fifth, and Rupert may not be in town. He doesn't want me to go alone."

She was moving about the room, had lit a copper-shaded lamp to add its glow to the firelight, was drawing the dark-green curtains at the windows, rearranging the bowl of marigolds on the table with swift brown fingers.

She stood presently beside the hearth, looking down at the coals, drawing her skirts away. The warmth and light of the room seemed to come from her still, red figure, rather than from the fire. Dirk could see her face in the small, silver-wreathed mirror on the mantel. She was smiling tremulously.

"I know you think it's comical," she said. "Rupert's not wanting me to go alone. He doesn't know, of course, how much I've knocked around by myself Unless . . ." She gave him a quick look. "Unless you've told him. Have you?"

Dirk answered in a low voice.

"How could I tell him what I don't know?"

"But you know," she said, "about the circus."

"The circus, yes. But I promised not to mention that. Do you think I would break my word?"

She was silent, looking at the fire. Dirk put his answer more positively.

"I have told nothing. I shall tell nothing You may trust me."

He had not moved, nor she, yet suddenly they seemed close. Some barrier had melted between them, some tension eased. She was turned away from him, but the little mirror showed him her face moving convulsively. She seemed to be striving for composure before facing him again Presently she looked up and in the mirror caught Dirk's eyes. A look of horror broke across her face. She bent over the fire.

Horror smote Dirk also. Horror that she should catch him spying on her, or seeming to spy.

He went to her side.

"If there's anything . . . Listen to me, Hope. I'd do anything for you. Anything on earth. Do you understand?"

She looked up at him, smiling now, her words a little shaken.

"Understand? Of course," she said.

"Ask something of me," he insisted "Anything."

"I do. Take me to the rodeo"

The moment was gone. She was laughing now, smoothing her hair at the little mirror, for they heard Rupert in the hall. She must always, thought Dirk, be smooth and beautiful for Rupert.

As for the rodeo, he said he would order seats.

"I've already ordered them," she answered. "I was ordering them when you came in."

ON the twenty-fifth it seemed so likely that Rupert would be at home that Dirk exchanged Hope's seats for a box, and invited Isabel. In the end Rupert went with them.

Hope had seemed gayer with Dirk since their meeting in the library, and at the same time more intent on avoiding him. The night of the rodeo she left him entirely to Isabel, sitting on Rupert's other hand, keeping Rupert's substantial bulk between them, so that Dirk could only rarely see her face.

It was natural that she should want to see the rodeo, even in what Dirk felt must be their unsympathetic company. The rodeo was the sort of horse-show to which she had been bred.

Dirk watched the bronco riding, wondering why he had never thought to visit a rodeo before. Isabel watched too, apparently less bored than usual, wearing a dark sports-suit, and a boyish hat.

She would be bored before it was over, but now she was interested even in the cowboys who, not taking part in the events, squatted on their heels about the arena, looking on. Sometimes when a cow or a bucking horse became too general in its activities they leaped aside, climbing the chutes or the rails of the boxes.

Rupert asked Hope why they were there, and passed her reply along to Dirk and Isabel.

"They're studying the horses, watching to see if a horse takes a long neck, or a short one."

It was during the steer-wrestling that a vast scramble occurred in the arena, and a cowboy leaped neatly into their box.

"That's the craziest steer we've got," he apologized, as Rupert rose to make room for him. "Some devil."

Dirk had been watching the steer, and the cowboy who, mounted on a pinto pony, was flying after him. Even as they looked, the boy left his horse, leaped to the steer's back, grabbing him below the horns. The steer whirled and twisted, lay suddenly on the ground, all four feet extended. . . .

The cowboy in the box heaved a sigh and smiled.

"Lucky Dan's in the money, all right," he said. "I thought he was crazy, trying to wrestle Lucifer. None of us thought a New York kid could do it. Lucifer's killed two men, Westerners."

Rupert was interested.

"Lucky Dan from New York?" he asked.

"So they say," answered the cowboy. "I sure don't believe it now."

"Why not?" inquired Isabel. The visiting cowboy was tall with keen gray eyes and skin as brown as a mango. "We have ranches here," she added.

He appeared to observe her for the first time. His gray eyes held admiration, and repressed amusement.

"Yes, Ma'am," he agreed politely, and leaped over the rail.

Rupert sat down again, but not before Dirk had seen Hope, leaning forward in her chair, staring into the arena with white face and fixed eyes. She was watching the New York cowboy, listening to the megaphoned voice of a judge proclaiming Lucky Dan's triumph over Lucifer.

There was an immense sound of applause, and Lucky Dan took off his sombrero, disclosing a grave young face, and a blond head. He bowed, never smiling, scarcely seeming to care.

Dirk watched him leave the arena. Something in his walk, something in the way he had taken off the sombrero—

Where, Dirk asked himself, had he seen Lucky Dan before? Where witnessed those automatic gestures, that slightly bowed gait? Did he imagine he held a memory of them because the boy was so plainly Hope's reason for being here? . . .

NEXT day Dirk inquired at the rodeo-offices about Lucky Dan. He had come, indeed, from a ranch upstate, had only lately entered the contests, under the management of his father, a bellicose individual named Jones.

"As for the boy," said Dirk's informant, an arena director in a ten-gallon hat, "as for that kid, he's got the face of an angel. Golden hair and blue eyes."

"What do I know about him? That's enough, ain't it? Neither him nor his dad mixes much with the crowd, so it's not easy to know 'em. Nobody likes Jones. He bullies the kid, but the kid don't seem to mind.

Dirk asked when Lucky Dan would ride again.

"Can't tell you that, at least not in advance. He got in late, and he has to wait every time till somebody drops out. Of course we knew ahead when he was goin' to wrestle Lucifer. That's how he got in, offerin' to bulldog old Lucifer."

And that was how Hope had known that she wanted to see the rodeo on the twenty-fifth. Dirk wondered if she would ask to go again.

That night he directed the detectives to look up the history of the Jones, father and son. That history, he had no doubt, was closely woven with the riddle of Hope.

In County Granges

Ashury.

The regular meeting Monday night was enjoyed by about 70 Grangers from Ulster Park, Lake Katrine and Ashury. Mrs Defew and Peter Sisly were initiated in the first and second degree. The lecture hour, in charge of Ulster Park Grange, was very entertaining. Thanks go to the service and hospitality committee for the new coat of paint on the Grange dining room and the new light fixtures, both upstairs and down. The 4-H Club of Ashury will present an entertainment at the Grange Hall Friday evening, May 15, at 7:45 o'clock, including a one-act play, "Filtermouse" and other attractions. The Ruthan band will be in costume. There is no admission but the girls would appreciate it if every family would bring cake, cookies or sandwiches to be served to all present. Another dance coming May 22, with Bill Bates and his cornhuskers.

Fairview

Accord, May 12.—The final evening of games sponsored by Fairview Grange will be held at Odd Fellows Hall, Accord, on Wednesday evening, May 20, with dancing and refreshments. These games were started last September. Anyone wishing to enjoy an evening of bridge, pinochle or dominoes is cordially invited.

Must Protect Early Cabbage from Maggot

Geneva, N. Y., May 14—Profits in the growing of cabbage and cauliflower to capture the high prices of the early market depend very largely upon the degree of success attained in controlling the cabbage maggot, says Dr. Hugh Glasgow, entomologist at the State Experiment Station here, who points out that early cabbage and cauliflower may suffer severe injury or may even by completely destroyed by this pest unless some means of control is adopted. Danish cabbage and cabbage grown chiefly for kraut are seldom troubled by maggot because the plants are not set in the field until most of the cabbage maggot flies have disappeared, it is explained.

Corrosive sublimate is highly effective in combating cabbage maggot and is probably the chief material used by most growers, although several other methods of treating early cabbage and cauliflower for maggot, including the use of calomel, are worth considering, says Dr. Glasgow.

Timing The Treatment

For the treatment of early cabbage in the field with corrosive sublimate, one ounce of the poison should be dissolved in 10 gallons of water. This solution should then be applied to the newly set plants within 3 to 5 days after transplanting in such a way that the soil immediately around the base of the plant is thoroughly moistened. The amount required will depend somewhat on the character of the soil, but ordinarily three ounces should be ample for each plant. The treatment should be repeated at least once and preferably twice at intervals of about a week to insure complete control. In case of plants set early in the spring before the flies become active, the first application should be deferred until egg laying commences. This generally occurs about the time European plums begin to bloom.

In small plantings, the most satisfactory means of applying the solution will be with a pail and dipper. Where large fields must be protected some simple mechanical contrivance, such as a tank mounted on wheels and provided with several leads of hose for treating a number of rows at a time, will lessen greatly the labor and cost of application.

Oldest Mahogany Cabinet Work in America in Peru

Peru, the treasure house of the Spanish conquistadors, was building cathedrals in the Sixteenth century. Within these dim time-hallowed walls are to be found altars, pulpits and choir stalls built and exquisitely carved nearly four centuries ago. Probably the oldest mahogany cabinet work in America are the choir stalls from a cathedral in Lima now in the Hispanic Society museum in New York city.

The early Spaniards settled the coast and the western slopes of the "Sierra." The coast section comprises only about one-tenth of the territory of Peru. The sierra is made up of the eastern, central and western Cordilleras, of which the latter is the most lofty, forming a never conquered barrier between the Pacific coast and the immense eastern forest region. The "Montana" is the eastern slope of the Andes, which sweeps down to the Amazon jungles. Some two-thirds of the republic's territory is in the Montana, the lower portion of which is a vast tropical jungle, much of it yet never seen by white man. Here is where mahogany is now being produced.

Thus, the early mahogany used in Peru came as ballast from the West Indies or Central America via Panama in returning treasure ships. It could not have been native mahogany from Peru as such mahogany is on the wrong side of the Andes.

Mahogany from the upper Amazon in Brazil and Peru was unknown until about a decade ago.

Unofficial Bank Serves Congressmen in Capital

Did you know there was a Bank of Congress? Although entirely unofficial, there is a $12,000,000 bank flourishing under the dome of the Capitol, says Pathfinder Magazine. This unique bank which operates without a charter and clears through the National Bank of Washington was established for the convenience of the members of the house of representatives. Only representatives are permitted to deposit money in it, and those deposits are limited to money drawn as salary from Uncle Sam.

Sergeant at Arms Kenneth Romney of the house is president of the Bank of Congress (unofficial title) and Harry Pillen is cashier. John Oberholzer is assistant cashier. All the bank's funds, except the cash on hand each day, are kept in the United States treasury. Members of the house are paid each month through this bank, and clerks, secretaries to representatives and other house employers are given the privilege of getting their twice-a-month checks cashed there.

Also friends and constituents of representatives visiting Washington who find themselves short of cash and who have no banking connections locally can get checks cashed at the "Bank of Congress"—provided their checks are endorsed by their representatives. Not only is this the only bank of its kind in the country, but it was the only bank that did not close during the banking holiday in March, 1933.

A "victory drive" has been inaugurated by the National Grange, expected to reach all its 8,000 subordinate granges located in 35 different states; designed to give a boost to membership finances and Grange work in general during the period from April 1 to June 30. The Grange response throughout the country is good and results are fast becoming apparent in new and reinstated membership and other visible signs of increased activity.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Some of the nicest legislative maneuvering of the session was required to compel house leaders to permit a vote on the $3,000,000,000 Frazier-Lemke "inflationary" farm mortgage bill.

A break in the Pennsylvania primary finally put it over. The bill would authorize the government to issue up to $3,000,000,000 in currency to finance three per cent loans to take up present farm indebtedness.

Many house members didn't like the measure but a large farm following did. For that reason the members tried to avoid voting on it at all.

For months its supporters, including Representative Lemke of North Dakota, co-author, sought the 218 petition signatures necessary to get a rule permitting it to be taken up.

Rules Committee Balked

The rules committee refused to report out a rule to call up the bill for consideration. Almost always there is a way around that obstacle. Until last session a petition of 145 representatives would get consideration for any bill, regardless of leadership opposition. Last session the hurdle was increased to 218.

Time after time supporters of the bill came within four to six votes of the total. A demand for a party caucus was contemplated but it occurred to the sponsors that a caucus might vote against the bill and thus provide an excuse for withdrawing desired by those who had signed the petition only to satisfy active farm groups back home.

A drive for the 218 signatures was renewed. Four representatives agreed to sign any time enough votes could be found to put the drive over the top.

The "Break" Comes

Days elapsed and nothing happened. One afternoon Representative Withrow of Wisconsin strolled down the house aisle to console Representative Berlin who had been beaten in the Pennsylvania primaries by a combination of circumstances that made him rebellious.

"Why don't you sign the petition?" Withrow suggested.

Berlin agreed. Quickly Withrow set out to round up the "secret four" whose names, with Berlin's, would complete the petition. By that time Representative Reilly of Wisconsin also had agreed to join.

Chairman O'Connor of the rules committee got wind of the situation and tried to find Berlin or anybody else who might be pulled off the list. None could be found. Three of the "secret four," Representatives Scott of California, Wolverton of New Jersey and Stewart of Alabama, signed and the list was complete. The chance to withdraw was past.

— COUNTY — Christian Endeavor NEWS —

County Union Rally

The Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union will hold a rally in the Reformed Dutch Church of New Paltz on Friday evening, May 22, beginning at 8 o'clock. There will be a recreational period from 8 to 9 o'clock which will be followed by a devotional service. The Rev. Harvey Hoffman of Mt. Marion will be the speaker of the evening, and the Rev. William C. Schwartz of Pleasant Valley, chairman of the state convention to be held in Poughkeepsie from July 2 to 5, will also be present to bring up-to-date information on plans for the convention. Refreshments will be served by the young people of the church.

The devotional period has been scheduled for 9 o'clock so that those who go according to standard time may come to the rally without having to miss the main features on the program.

Ulster Trails

Ulster County Union is not among the leaders in state convention registration. The Eastern Division which includes this section, places Columbia county, first, Clinton-Essex, second, and Ulster last. To Chemung county goes the honor of being the first in the state to fill their quota of registrations, with Seneca county second. These two groups will each receive 100 points on the "Union Program of Activity for the Year."

Montour Assembly

The dates for the Montour Summer Assembly this year have been changed to August 16-23. Courses offered include those on young people's society activities, Bible, personal life subjects, current social problems, and the mission of the Christian Church. An exceptionally capable faculty composed of leaders who have an understanding of young people and the winning of their loyalty and interest, is being selected.

Comforter to Close Season

On Friday evening, May 15, the Church of the Comforter Christian Endeavor will bring to a close its second successful season with a business meeting and social in their meeting room. Arrangements will be made at this time for the final prayer-meeting on Sunday, May 17. Members are requested to make a special effort to attend this last meeting.

Port Ewen Mother's Day

The Port Ewen Endeavorers celebrated Mother's Day last Sunday evening with a special candlelight service in the church. A very pleasing song-service helped to complete a successful and enjoyable meeting.

Wurts Street Plans

It is quite probable that the Sunday evening meeting of May 17 will bring to a close the regular Sunday prayer-meetings of the Wurts Street Baptist organization, but tentative plans call for several open-air services at selected sites throughout the surrounding country during the summer months. The experience of past years has shown that these "blue canopy" meetings can be quite successful.

Albany Avenue Banquet

On May 20 the Christian Endeavor Alumni Banquet will be held at the church. Plans are being completed to insure a good time and the Albany Avenue Endeavorers would like to see all the "old timers" as well as the present members, at this meeting. The committee in charge promises some fine speakers, and tickets may be procured from members or may be purchased at the banquet.

The Mother's Day service was conducted last Sunday under the leadership of Miss Evelyn Jones, and featured an excellent address by Dr. Gifford. Special music for the occasion consisted of a vocal solo by Miss Helen Bates and a violin solo by Harold Canfield.

College Tradition

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

All the Jones men had gone to college for generations back, until it had become a family tradition. No one considered the possibility of a Jones boy not going, and from the time they were born they were looked upon as future members of one of the big universities, like their fathers and grand-fathers before them.

But "sports" occur in the best-regulated families. Perhaps the present Mrs. Jones was not of the intellectual caliber usually accepted into the family, or perhaps some early and ungenerate Jones was emerging centuries after his death to shock his presumably high-brow descendants. At any rate, Tom Jones, the oldest son of the present generation, refused to consider college. He had trouble with his school work from the outset. His father stormed, his mother pled, but Tom, instead of improving, grew worse, and finally, after a violent session with his parents walked out of the house never to return, when he was about sixteen.

College was originally a privilege sought by the few who were able and fitted to have the advantage of some years of special training. Later it became a kind of symbol of aristocracy, and boys of background and social prominence made up a large portion of the undergraduate body. The slogan "college bred is a four year loaf" became popular.

Today it has become a kind of fad. Everyone wants to go to college, whatever his qualifications and whatever his ambitions. Degrees have become so usual as to lose much of their meaning. Many boys, eager to be at work, resent four years of what seems to them useless activity.

To force such a boy to enter college because it is a family tradition is absurd. If he does not want to go he is not apt to get any good out of it.

Brave Chubby Cub

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

WILLY NILLY soaked Chubby's paw in some water Mr. Quacko brought from the warmest part of the pond over which the sun had been shining. He carried the water in a big hollow stone with the help of Quackles, Yellow Beak and Grandpa White Wings.

Willy Nilly let the paw soak, and then he pinched out several pieces of glass.

After that he took some of Mrs. Quacko's brook liniment and put it on the paw and then he wrapped it up in a soft cotton bandage.

Then Chubby Cub hobbled back to Willy Nilly's, leaning on Jelly Bear and Willy Nilly as he walked.

"You were a brave cub," said Willy Nilly, as they sat down in front of his house.

"But I cried when I was hurt," said Chubby. "That wasn't very brave."

"Oh, you were surprised and startled then, but you are a brave, brave cub. It wasn't any fun for you to have glass taken out of your foot."

"I can't imagine how there was any glass around my pond," said Mrs. Quacko Duck. "I did such a thorough spring pond cleaning—in all the nooks and crannies and everywhere about it."

"It may have been in the earth for some time—fell there at some time by mistake when something may have broken," said Willy Nilly. "It was not your fault, Mrs. Quacko."

But she went back to do an extra cleaning around her place, and then she returned to Willy Nilly's.

Chubby Cub was sitting up against the pine tree, the center of attraction.

League's Success in Economic Field Bogs Down in Mire of Sanctions

Third and last in a series discussing the League of Nations in the light of its failure to stop the Ethiopian war.

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY

Geneva (AP)—Economics and disarmament have been among the most difficult problems which the League of Nations has undertaken to solve.

The League successes in these fields, like its political triumphs, have been obscured in the public mind by the other side of the picture, but here at Geneva they are not forgotten.

The 15-year administration of the Saar Valley in Germany, involving ramifications of French and German industrial and commercial interests and crowned by the successful plebiscite that returned the district to the Reich, is counted a triumph.

Admittedly, the action in the case of the similar region of Upper Silesia, was less efficacious. The treaty of Versailles provided for a plebiscite and the vote divided the territory between Germany and Poland. Germany never has been satisfied with the outcome.

War Handicaps Recovery

The Italian-Ethiopian war hampered Geneva efforts to improve world economic conditions at a moment when encouraging signs were apparent.

Last September, when the full League met in annual assembly, there developed real hope that international trade and finance would get better steadily. This hope sprang from two sources.

The first was a decision by League committees to further a program for removal of quotas and similar trade barriers, and the lowering of tariffs.

On top of this came a message from the American secretary of state, Cordell Hull, voicing praise of the efforts of the League's economic experts and calling them "dramatic and courageous."

Sanctions An Issue

But adjudication of Italy as the aggressor against Ethiopia and the voting of financial and commercial sanctions against the European country, brought a breakdown in the newly overhauled machinery.

What the League's economic committee had in mind in the program which brought praise from Washington was essentially the course that Secretary Hull presented at the lamented world economic conference was one of the historic failures of the League's record.

Residents of the Saar Valley vote in a plebiscite which gave the territory to Germany and ended a 15-year administration by the League of Nations, heralded as one of Geneva's outstanding triumphs.

Previously there had been some measure of success in economic conferences under League auspices. A financial parley at Brussels in 1920 put international economic relations upon a basis that proved helpful and a world economic conference at Geneva in 1925 adopted a more advanced philosophy of relationships.

Arms Expenditures Continue

But this progress, like that recorded in the disarmament field, was minor. Admittedly the League has failed to reduce military forces and expenditures. It has, to be sure, drafted a multilateral treaty for control of traffic in arms, evolved principles for defining an aggressor and forced a plan for financial assistance to a state that is attacked.

But political fears have nullified these efforts. Disarmament conferences at London and Geneva have broken down and peace-time military establishments and arms budgets are today probably the greatest in history.

Temple Emanuel Services Announced

Friday evening, May 15, services will be held at Temple Emanuel at 7:45 p. m. Rabbi Bloom will preach on the theme, "The Evils of Good Intentions." The public is cordially invited.

On Saturday morning, May 16, the Bible class will be held at the Rabbi's home from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Sunday evening, May 17, the Young Folk group will meet at the Rabbi's residence at 8 o'clock.

Monday evening, there will be a meeting in the social hall of the Temple at 8 o'clock of the members of the American Jewish Congress and those interested in the work, for the purpose of considering the forthcoming Washington Conference and the World Jewish Congress this summer. It is hoped that a delegate to Washington, from Kingston, will be elected at the meeting.

Wednesday evening, May 19, the adult class in Hebrew and American Jewish history will meet at the home of one of its members.

On Thursday evening, May 21, the Talmidim will meet at the home of Rabbi Bloom at 8 o'clock.

There has been a postponement of the Parent-Teacher Association meeting, from May 25 to June 1, at which time Mr. Schoonmaker of the Kingston Y. M. C. A. will address the group.

Jail Visitors Remain.

Columbus, Ga. (AP)—Four men and a woman called at the county jail and asked to see one of the prisoners. They were granted their request, then given cells themselves—on charges of being drunk.

Now those dusky Ethiopians will be civilized. First thing will be to teach 'em the Fascist salute, second to make 'em eat spaghetti, third to show 'em how to earn money to buy the spaghetti.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

Mrs. June Fickel

(By The Associated Press)

Mrs. June Fickel of Iowa, the Democratic "grass tramper" of 1932, expects to tramp more middlewestern sod in 1936. She won the title four years ago because of her activity in stumping all parts of the farm belt for Roosevelt.

She was a farmer before she was drafted as assistant director of the women's division of her party, so could talk farm problems with authority. She was a professional singer, so her voice carried well to the rear of the tent. She is a breezy, unaffected, witty western woman, so even the men folk like to hear her.

Now that four years have passed she knows much more than the farm sector of the New Deal. She will go back to tramping grass shortly, and she won't stop until the election is over.

Plague of Cats Overruns Interior of Australia

The cat family, which is carnivorous, had never penetrated Australia until the advent of the white man, less than 150 years ago. That is why Australia's native fauna, which for the most part is herbivorous, has survived from a pre-carnivorous age.

Now, however, thousands of domesticated cats, gone wild, are waging ferocious war on the native bird life of the uninhabited or sparsely populated interior, and, in some districts, wiping it out altogether.

"On a trip of 1,000 miles from north Queensland down to Lake Eyre," Ion Idriess, the author, remarked, "I saw countless thousands upon thousands of these cats. Apparently they have been breeding over a score of years, and have grown much larger than the ordinary domestic cat."

Idriess reports that at one water hole he saw 30 cats fighting and tearing one another to pieces while hundreds more snarled down from the trees. Cockatoos and parrots seem to be surviving because they can defend themselves, but other native birds are being decimated.

Musical Society Gave Fine Program

The Musical Society of Kingston was again privileged to give its May open meeting at the home of Mrs. Antonio Knauth of Albany avenue on Wednesday evening. The hour set for the beginning of the program was half past eight o'clock, as the members of the society and their guests were invited by Mrs. Knauth to come before that hour to enjoy her garden now very beautiful with the spring flowers in full bloom. The same disappointing fate of other musicales when the beauty of the garden was to have been an added attraction, overtook the Musical Society, for the rain in the late afternoon made strolling through the shrubbery, along the pool and beside the lovely rock garden impossible. However, tantalizing glimpses of the sylvan beauty were possible from the house, and were appreciated to the full.

Mrs. Henry Millonig, Jr., president of the society, very cordially welcomed the guests in the name of the society and for Mrs. Knauth. She gave a brief but very pleasing and illuminating word prelude to the program of Schubert music, recalling that Schubert had as magical a touch musically as did Midas with gold. It seemed that whatever Schubert touched became musical. Mrs. Millonig, after mentioning the great number of musical works of various types composed by Franz Schubert, said that one never thought of calling his music a technical achievement or clever, but always "beautiful" and added that the Musical Society of Kingston would try to interpret some of Schubert's music for their audience.

The program opened with a brilliant performance of Marche Militaire, played as a piano duet by the Misses Mauterstock.

This was followed by the singing of one of Schubert's most loved works, "Serenade," sung by Jessie Cowley Wolfersteig, with Helen Cowley Tremper at the piano, and was given very appreciative applause.

Lelia Reynolds Decker played the "Minuetto in B Minor," all too seldom heard, and played it well and with a depth of tone that was admirable.

Even recalling the many lovely songs that Mrs. Dunbar has sung especially in the musical atmosphere of her mother's charming home, it would seem that she never sang more beautifully than she did last night, choosing "An die Musik" (Invocation) and "Geheimes" (The Secret). She was particularly well accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Millonig.

Elizabeth Maddox LeFevre and Margaret Howe were heartily applauded for their playing as a piano duet a movement from Schubert's Unfinished Symphony.

Another lovely song was "Wohin?" (Whither) sung charmingly by Jeanette K. Mills, with Helen Cowley Tremper at the piano.

The program was very pleasingly varied by a duo for violin and piano, Op. 162, played by Florence W. Cubberly and Gladys R. Millonig. Their interpretation of the composition was excellent and the performance of it was truly musical.

One of the outstanding numbers of the evening was the singing beautifully of Schubert's incomparable "Ave Maria" by Josephine Mortell Dederick of Saugerties, with Ella O Eltinge at the piano.

Phyllis Brodhead was very warmly applauded for her playing of the Impromptu in A flat, opus 4.

The program was brought to a splendid finale by the singing of Die Allmacht (Omnipotence) by an ensemble, which included Phyllis Brodhead, Eva Clinton, Josephine Dedrick, Carol Downer, Ilse Dunbar, Ella Eltinge, Gabriella Forst, Margaret Howe, Elizabeth LeFevre, Mary Legg, Jeanette MacKinnon, Catherine McCommons, Jeannette Mills, Frances Muller, Dorothy Nelson, Caroline Port, Edna Rignall, Jessie Wolfersteig, Ethel Wood, with Lelia Reynolds Decker at the piano and Eva Clinton conducting.

The members of the society were all heartily congratulated on the evening of music which they had so admirably prepared for their friends.

It is gratifying to note the progress being made by the society as it is heard from year to year at the time of its summer musicales.

After the program Mrs Knauth, with her usual gracious hospitality, served refreshments and an hour of musical sociability was enjoyed.

Mrs. Guggenheim Hurt

Atlantic City, N J, May 14 (AP)—Mrs M. Robert Guggenheim of New York city and Babylon, Long Island, prominent horse woman who was thrown twice at the Atlantic City Horse Show last night was reported in a "fairly good" condition today. She suffered a mild concussion of the brain in the second fall, but Atlantic City hospital officials said she was resting comfortably and probably would be discharged before night. Riding Firenze Red Tape, a hunter, in the final event last night, she lost control of the horse and it dashed for the exit gate. She fell and was dragged several feet, her head just missing a gate post. Fifteen minutes before, her horse had stumbled at the first jump and thrown Mrs Guggenheim on her back. She was badly shaken but came back for a second attempt.

People Demand More Services

Ithaca, N. Y., May 16—Increasing demands for services from national, state, and local governments, which accompanied relief needs during the depression, show little prospect of a marked decrease in the near future. Other governmental services that concern highways, police protection, and education are increasing in importance.

This statement is made by Professor M. P. Catherwood of the department of agricultural economics at Cornell University.

For the most part, he says, counties and towns in New York state operate under general provisions of state law which apply to all parts of the state. Some difficulties have resulted because the needs of different communities vary.

"Opinions have differed as to the best ways to meet the problems faced by local units of government, such as counties and towns. A strong feeling in favor of local control has persisted, but until recently the state constitution has provided no method to change the system of local government in accordance with the desires of the citizens.

"Now, with the approval given to the county home rule amendment by the people of the state in November, 1935, the constitution directs the legislature to provide optional forms of county government. No such optional form becomes effective in any county until the voters approve.

"The 1936 session of the legislature has considered a number of proposals for optional forms of government. It is expected that laws will be passed and amended from year to year whereby a wide variation of optional changes in local government will be available to counties. Such forms of government, however, are to be optional and present forms will continue until the people in any given county desire to change.

"Many local officials and citizens recognize limited changes which might be made in the present system of local government. It is hoped that optional forms of local government to be made available by the legislature will give an opportunity for small changes, rather than to provide only for very broad changes which would be rejected by the citizens of most counties.

"Among the changes that might well be considered," says Professor Catherwood, "are methods to give the board of supervisors more effective control over county finances, improved budget systems, improved financial reports, centralization of purchasing, and a county agency to improve assessment procedure. Each of these changes has already been made by some counties in New York."

BLUE-EYED GIRLS FAVORED BY MOST BABY SHOPPERS

Atlanta, Ga. (AP). — The baby placement market here is bearish, but that doesn't keep would-be foster parents from being choosey.

For instance, they're demanding babies whose coloring matches their own, says Mrs. Virginia Lee Bennett, acting executive secretary of the Child Welfare Association, which supervises all legal adoptions in Atlanta.

"Type selection," she says, "is carried to such a fine point nowadays that adopted babies often develop striking family resemblances."

Mrs. Bennett also cites the fact that babies often adopt parents—by a coo or grip of the prospect.

Blue-eyed, curly-haired little girls are most in demand, she reports, but boy babies are not without takers.

The preferred age is between six months and a year.

PHILIPPINE COPRA CROP MOUNTS TO SIZABLE TOTAL

Manila, P. I. (AP).—The Philippine copra (coconut meat) crop in 1935 amounted to 641,507 metric tons, according to the annual report of copra brokers.

Total production of coconut oil during the year was 201,722 tons. Copra exports amounted to 256,638 tons, while desiccated coconut exported totaled 34,729 tons.

Copra and coconut oil stocks on hand December 31, 1935, were valued at $28,933,000, as compared with $19,528,000 the previous year.

Rush For Convention Tickets Swamps Republican Officials

Cleveland (AP)—Demand for tickets to the Republican national convention, opening here June 9, is described as three times as great as can be satisfied.

"I have been on the national committee for 28 years, and on the arrangements committee since 1912, and I can't recall any greater demand," Ralph E. Williams declares.

Williams says he has an "idea" the party's national convention will last five days. It opens Tuesday. And he says "it probably will finish Saturday."

Agreement Takes Time

The convention could be shorter if the party had a candidate for renomination, Williams said. "As it is, we must decide on a platform which suits the majority, and name a candidate for President and a candidate for vice president according to the will of the majority.

"That takes longer than it would take if a candidate sought re-nomination."

The same reason is partly responsible for the unusual interest in this year's convention, Williams explained. He added that "this is a year when more people are taking an active interest in politics.

Interest Widespread

"People in every section of the country," he said, "are wanting to take part in the Republican convention. There is as much interest and as great a demand for tickets from the far west and the south as from the closer states."

The opening day will be devoted principally to electing temporary convention officials with the keynote speech in the evening by Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon.

The main business on Wednesday will be permanent organization Williams said it was probable the platform would be Thursday's chief business, with the nomination for President coming on Friday and the nomination for vice president on Saturday.

Ralph E. Williams, Republican national committeeman, says G. O. P. convention probably will continue five days.

Childhood Develops Manhood's Traits

Ithaca, N. Y., May 14.—Early childhood is the golden age to develop right thinking that goes to make up a wholesome personality, according to Dr. Margaret Wylie of the New York state college of home economics, who says the bases for physical, mental, and social traits are laid in early childhood.

"Parents should realize how important it is to guide the child from the time he begins to form his first habit, for undesirable habits and mental outlooks learned in childhood are foundations for later troubles," Dr. Wylie says.

Both physical and mental hygiene are parts of child guidance. According to Dr. Wylie, the first concern is a healthy body, through which the sense organs gain knowledge. If the child's sight and hearing are not normal, these should be corrected. Also, the child should be provided with outlets for his energy which satisfy but are not destructive; he should learn to relax and to rest, and he should gain self-reliance through the development of such routine habits as eating, sleeping, and dressing.

Good mental habits must go with good physical habits to develop a successful personality, Dr. Wylie says. Among good mental habits she lists the most important as self respect and respect for the rights of others, sharing, taking turns, the control of appetites and impulses, independence, and self-reliance. Mental hygienists emphasize the development of habits learned in early childhood, of willingness to accept correction and to correct mistakes, of facing reality, of actively meeting difficulty, of seeing the humor in any situation, of discounting one's own importance, or of not taking one's self too seriously.

Boys' Hi-Y Club Elected Officers

The Boys' Hi-Y Club, holding its regular weekly meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last night, elected the following officers to administer the affairs of the club for the season of 1936-37:

President, Gilbert Richter.
Vice president, Roger Salzman
Secretary, Frank O'Hara
Treasurer, Joseph Heaney

The newly elected officers responded to the election with brief speeches. The outgoing officers were given a hearty vote of thanks for their loyalty and work during the year and expressed their appreciation to the club members for the hearty cooperation which they had received. The retiring officers are President, Willis Locke, vice president, George Silkworth, secretary, Gilbert Richter, and treasurer, Pete Weise.

Roger Salzman, one of the Kingston delegates to the Central Hudson Hi-Y Council meeting held in Newburgh last Friday, reported on that meeting and stated that the Central Hudson Hi-Y Council expected to hold its fall Hi-Y Training Conference at the Kingston Y. M. C. A. camp in September.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Unreel parade:

Hollywood thinks the road-show (a term covering mainly a lift in prices for a "de luxe presentation") has returned definitely, the proof being reception of "The Great Ziegfeld" at a premiere which for splendor was like the brightest of the old days.

The town now is looking for other screen subjects to justify extra-length productions like this one, which runs a little over three hours. It is believed fans will pay to see one long, good film as eagerly as they do now to see a "double bill," which strikes the producers as a way to end their double-feature nightmare.

Frank Capra is paying $16 a day for assorted human shadows in "Lost Horizon" . . . The shadows pass on a white wall behind Ronald Colman and John Howard as the two sit on steamer deck chairs. . . . Capra chose the silhouettes according to steamer types.

Robinson Crusoe Back

"Robinson Crusoe" is coming back in serial form, with Mala as the castaway hero.

From a studio "press release" of February 12, 1936, quoting Arline Judge:

"'The woman is usually responsible for domestic happiness, and the surest way to lose it is to permit her hair to go stringy, her complexion muddy and her hands and nails to get that shrivelled dish pan look,' continued the diminutive star who is happily married to Director Wesley Ruggles."

But Miss Judge looked her usual charming self a few weeks ago when she announced she was to be no longer "happily married to Director Wesley Ruggles."

Joan Crawford, with Franchot Tone, saw her first circus the other night, and became a fan on the spot.

Be Homely, Says Furness

Tip for young swains seeking a "date" with Betty Furness: Be as homely as you wish, but be amusing. . . . "I don't mind a homely man," says Betty, "but save me from a dull one. There seems to be a general conspiracy against fun these days. Most young men feel they must be gravely polite to attract a girl. It's all a lot of nonsense. Now that most girls work as hard as men, they want to be amused in the evening, not bored to death nor impressed."

Few people know it, but it was the writer, Charles Furthmann, who was responsible for Chaplin's singing in "Modern Times" . . . Furthmann has a home recording outfit, and one evening he turned it on just as Chaplin was about to enter. For his guests' edification he began singing. He played back the record and Chaplin was so impressed by its effectiveness that he incorporated the number in the film.

Fruit Bloom to Be Ahead of Last Year

Geneva, N. Y., May 14—Prospects of a good bloom for most orchards in the Empire State are exceedingly bright at this time, says Prof. Richard Wellington, head of the pomology division at the Experiment Station here in a statement forecasting the dates when the different fruits will probably be in full bloom in western New York. For the Hudson valley and Long Island these dates will be somewhat earlier, while for the Champlain valley and the northern part of the state they will be a little later.

Except for severe cold spells during the past winter in sections of the Hudson valley which undoubtedly killed many peach buds, fruit plantings in New York state as a whole have come through the winter exceptionally well, says Prof Wellington. "In fact, the steady cold of the past winter was a real benefit, for it prevented any premature development of the fruit buds," he says, adding that, "The long, cold spring has also practically precluded loss of fruit buds and bloom from severe frosts, although one cannot be too sure until we have passed May 20."

Apples Due About May 21

Regarding probable blooming dates for the different fruits, Prof. Wellington states that if weather conditions are normal the time of full bloom will be a little ahead of that in 1935. Peaches, for example, which may bloom from April 20 in extreme early seasons to May 23 in late seasons, should be in full bloom in western New York about May 10, allowing for differences in variety and location of orchards.

Japanese plums, which usually come slightly ahead of peaches, should be in full bloom about May 8 this year, with sweet cherries coming in with the peaches. The sour cherry bloom starts just about the time the sweet cherry bloom is over. After sour cherries will come the pears which should reach their peak about May 18 to be followed by the apple which should be at its maximum bloom on May 21. Often there is a spread of a week or more between the early-blooming crabapples and the late-blooming Spy. Grapes, with their inconspicuous bloom, are at the end of the list, in adverse seasons often blooming as late as the latter part of June.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE SEEKS EARLY POSTMARK

Atlanta, Ga. (AP)—The national park service is reasonably certain there was a post office at Old King's Gap near Warm Springs between 1831 and 1855.

But it wants some tangible proof—a postmarked envelope or letter cover bearing the stamp of the old tavern post.

If found, the relic will be placed in the museum now being set up at Pine Mountain state park.

OLIVE BRIDGE

Olive Bridge, May 13—The Epworth League Society of the West Hurley M. E. Church will present a play, "The Hen Pecked Hero", a three-act play in the I. O. O. F. Hall on Friday evening, May 15, at 8 o'clock. After the play refreshments served by the local Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church.

A number from this place attended the Home Bureau meeting held at the home of Mabel Weidner for the first lesson in landscape gardening.

Production of copper in Canada during 1935 amounted to 419,051,056 pounds, an increase of 14.9 per cent over the 1934 output.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Embroidered sheers for summer formals. Diana Mewm

Sheer frothy formals are now in order with balmy summer nights heralding moonlight dances, country club affairs and all sorts of similar occasions.

Puffed sleeves, frilly pleats, full skirts, tunics and brief jackets (and most times there is a jacket) are some of the highlights that go to make these sheer delights so irresistible.

The light pale tints are good, but some of the darker shades, when trimmed with crisp white, look just as cool and smart.

The all-over embroidered mousseline de soie summer formal shown above is in navy and white. The dress has a low cut decolletage at the back and a group of soft white flowers decorate the front. Finely pleated white mousseline de soie edges the collar and graces the full hemline all around.

Even though jackets are brief they are very important. This one of bolero theme is just big enough to cover the low cut gown beneath, making the dress appropriate for dinner wear.

The swish of taffeta can be heard when this gown is about—as it is posed over a rustling taffeta slip.

That the economic loss due to insect pests is equal to about one-fifth of the nation's food bill, is the estimate of scientific men in the United States Department of Agriculture. The most destructive of all these pests is the boll weevil, which is well known in the cotton states.

MAKE SUMMER SLIP COVERS

The family's favorite chair, the comfortable big wing—don't let its worn upholstery become an eyesore! Anyway, in summer our plushy winter favorites are so much fresher and cooler if slip-covered in smooth, pretty linen or cretonne or chintz.

You can change your whole room from winter to summer mood with very little time and expense if you make the slip-covers yourself. It's so easy, the right way.

No cutting paper patterns, or wasting cloth. Just pin your fabric in place, tight and straight, on the chair, as you see in the sketch. Pin along upholstery lines, with tuck-in allowance between back and seat, leaving the bolt of cloth on the floor until you are ready to trim the shaped piece a big seam's width from the pin lines.

Then, when the whole thing is pinned and cut, baste it all together firmly, slip it on right side out to make sure, then machine-stitch the seams.

Be sure you have the back pieces come up pleaty high on your wing chair, so the cover will slip off easily. And there are other little tricks and professional touches that make the job easy and the cover smart—good seam finishes, how to estimate yardage, materials for many types of chairs and sofas, shrinkage. It's all in our 40-page illustrated booklet, How to Make Slip Covers Successfully.

Send 10c for our booklet, How To Make Slip Covers Successfully, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

"We've tried all kinds of dressin's, but ain't one of 'em could come up to Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise!

"Hellmann's has that full, delicious flavor and rich creamy goodness that, well, you jus' can't get from nothin' else!"

The secret of that is simple! Hellmann's is made differently. It contains only the same fine foods you'd use in your own home. No starchy fillers. Just—choice salad oil, freshly-broken eggs, a specially selected vinegar, and imported spices. Nothing else. It's all mayonnaise. And it's double-whipped for its marvelous creamy smoothness.

See for yourself how much more praise your salads get when you use Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise! Get a jar today. It is so good—yet it costs but a trifle per salad.

Signs of Spring!

Ho, hum, I shore am orful tired, but I'll soon be feelin' prime,
'Cause Ma is diggin' sassafras, and it's sulphur an' lassus time.

Speaking of ambitious friends, a man referred to one as: "He's usually so far ahead of the bandwagon that he can't even hear the drums."

He—I can tell you the score of the game before it starts.

She—My, you're smart! What is it?

He—Nothing to nothing—before it starts.

Some marriage lines that can never be lost—wrinkles.

Little Willie—Uncle, does father like to watch you play football?

Rich Uncle — What an idea! I don't play football.

Little Willie — Well, I heard father say that whenever you kicked off he'd quit working.

Fable: Once there was a woman who thought her husband's boss was paying him all he was worth.

Wife—Anyway, we don't go around buying votes for $2 apiece like you men do.

Husband—You would if you could get them for $1.98.

Correct this sentence: "I think the government is acting wisely," said the owner of stock, "to prevent a wild bull market."

Panhandler—Say, old man, can you help a brother Moose, Elk, Eagle, Owl, Odd Fellow or Labor Unionist?

Man—I don't belong to any of them.

Panhandler—Then can you help a brother Methodist, Baptist, Lutheran, Catholic, Quaker or Presbyterian?

Man—I don't belong to any of them either.

Panhandler—Well, then, shake hands, partner, and assist a fellow socialist, uplifter, braintruster, and a boondoggler in distress!

An Englishman, according to popular legend, gets three laughs from a joke—first, when the joke is told; second, when it is explained to him, and third, when he understands it. The Frenchman gets only the first two—he never sees the point. The German gets one—he won't wait for an explanation. And the American gets none at all, because he's heard the joke before.

Lost!

I'm looking for a woman—I've been searching days and days;
Her fame is sped athwart the world;
she revels in its praise.
There is a note I've got to meet—a mortgage I must raise.
Oh, where's that famous feminine who pays, and pays, and pays?

Boss—Say, what does this mean? Someone called up, and said you were sick, and that you couldn't show up for work today.

Employe—Ha! Ha! The joke's on him. He wasn't supposed to call up until next Friday.

There is one big difference between owing money and owing a grudge. We usually try to pay our grudges.

Teacher (lecturing on charity)—Now, Junior, if I saw a boy beating up a donkey and stopped him from doing so, what virtue should I be showing?

Junior (promptly) — Brotherly love.

If one follows the straight and narrow path it must be from choice, as there are always plenty of detours.

First Russian (on phone)—Hello, is this you. Dvratishigorensilvestrateni?

Second Russian—No, its Voldisgnikisfnisinvkjilski. Who is this speaking?

First Russian — Grasniskkititchanzkxifgli. I want to know if Tschawskivingeski is staying with you.

A free land is one where forty competitors must go broke before the survivor can make a living.

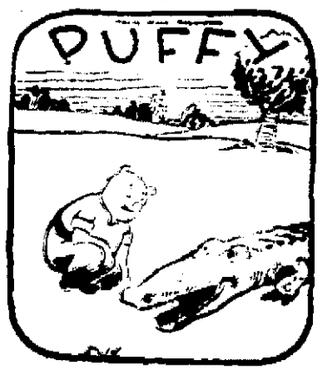
Chicago, said to have been the first city where settlement work in so-called foreign neighborhoods had its beginning and where the late Jane Addams started Hull House and her internationally famed social uplift program in 1889, now has 52 different neighborhood centers catering to the underprivileged. Of these the same Hull House, in the center of the city's melting pot, is still the best known.



"I am," says the crocodile, "gentle and kind.
My friends think I have an extraordinary mind.
I've studied the classics, I sing fairly well,
I may be a genius some day, who can tell?"

Events Around The Empire State

Harrisville, N. Y., May 14 (AP).—John Lecox discovered beneath the floor of a workshop today a padlocked metal box which he estimated might contain more than $30,000 property of the late Burt W. Hughes, a recluse.

Hughes died two years ago, reputedly worth $40,000, but only $4,000 was ever found. Lecox took the box to the Harrisville National Bank, pending permission from the state comptroller's office to open it.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 14 (AP).—James H. Handley sought $10,000 damages in a supreme court suit today for a broken left wrist suffered when a golfer's sliced ball hit him.

Handley sued the city and Clarence C. Rappold, the golfer. He said he was watching a baseball game in Delaware Park when the ball struck him. Rappold's attorney contended Handley was sitting on the fairway.

New York, May 14 (AP).—George S. Van Schaick, former state superintendent of insurance, assumed his duties today as vice president of the New York Life Insurance Company. He was nominated March 11 and elected yesterday.

Hyde Park, N. Y., May 14 (AP).—Otto Berg of East Park will operate the Val-Kill furniture shop founded by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt here, an announcement issued in her name said today.

Miss Nancy Cook, who has conducted the shop since its founding, will continue to give advice and help, the announcement said.

Walsh, Colo., has a population of 454. The Federal Government, it is said, proposes to build the town a new municipal golf course and the WPA is said to have approved a project to expend $10,566 to build the citizens a new city hall with council room, two rest rooms, offices and a community hall.

Cutting Department At Jacobson Shirt Factory Is Closed

The cutting department at the Jacobson shirt factory on Smith avenue and Cornell street is closed, and more than 20 men are idle.

According to an announcement made at the office of the factory this morning, the department will remain closed indefinitely, and the work will be done at Troy in the Jacobson plant there.

When he asked whether any of the other departments would be affected a reporter was told by one of the plant bosses, "We could move this whole works to Troy and not miss it."

During the confab, a settlement was made about some dissention in the laundry department "If they don't want to do the job under the present agreement, we'll have to send it out of town" was the stand the firm took The workers in the laundry decided to do it

"Why did you close the cutting department?" asked the reporter

"The cutters asked for a different arrangement on a job we had for a large shirt concern in Washington, D C, and were told they'd have to work along the same agreement under which they were operating. They refused The New York office was notified and we received the order to close the department and send the work to Troy"

The Troy factory is the largest of the Jacobson plants, employing about 700 people Kingston has about 450, of which 150 are men, and the Albany factory employs about 250 When the shirt business was booming, Kingston gave work to about 600.

Adjournment Reached

Dawn broke over the historic capitol more than two hours before the final gavels fell in paper-littered houses, bringing to an end the longest annual session since 1911.

From 10 a m yesterday until adjournment, more than 20 hours, both Senate and Assembly worked frantically to clear their calendars of hundreds of remaining measures.

Nearly 200 bills were sent to Governor Lehman for his consideration during the coming month, and nearly as many fell by the wayside either in committees or through defeat on the floor

The closing hours were orderly, although punctuated by many bitter debates on the more controversial measures such as the ultimately defeated proposals for pari-mutuel betting and legislative and congressional reapportionment

As the hours rolled past, and breakfasts appeared on drowsy legislators' desks lawmakers had visions of a session such as that of last year when the legislature worked 28 consecutive hours before heading homeward.

Business Accelerated

But the legislative wheels were accelerated early today, and just before 7 a m each house appointed committees to wait on Governor Lehman, who sat throughout the night in the executive chamber on the floor below

A new delay occurred even after the committees had returned, however

Senator John J McNaboe, New York democrat, had discovered that he lacked two votes short of the necessary 26 to obtain approval of a measure asking an appropriation of $15,000 to investigate communism in schools through a legislative commission

The Sergeant-at-arms hurriedly summoned two more members, Senators Perley A Pitcher, Watertown republican, and Norman A O'Brien Rochester democrat, who had been out of the chamber, and the bill was passed

Then came the Senate adjournment, just a few minutes after assembly.

A score of sleepy spectators remained throughout the night, their ranks dwindling rapidly when midnight passed without signs of a windup

One of the last pieces of legislation to go through was the supplemental budget of $2,094 724, providing for the executive, judicial and legislative branches

Praises Lehman

Democratic Senate Leader John J. Dunnigan exploded a political bombshell immediately after adjournment by issuing a statement saying that the Republican organization "now finds itself in a position where no one is anxious to assume the leadership and the right men refuse to accept nominations to state-wide office"

"As for Governor Lehman," he said, "his record makes him a more formidable candidate for re-election than he has ever been.

"It is a fair prediction to make at this time that the Legislature of 1937 will not only have a Democratic-controlled Senate but in all probability a lower house with our party in the majority."

Dunnigan further said that the governor, supported by the Democrats in the Legislature, had supported the national administration and President Roosevelt "in a manner which brings great credit to our party, our state and the nation."

Another last minute bill approved was that of Republican Senate Leader George R Fearon, clearing the way for optional forms of county government.

Security Outstanding

The outstanding development of the final session was the Republican-dominated Assembly's rejection of Governor Lehman's proposal to align New York state completely with the federal social security act, sounding the death knell of the administration's measure to obtain federal aid of $20,000,000 to help the needy aged, the blind and dependent children

A Republican-sponsored bill carrying out one phase of the eight-point program—reducing the old age pension limit from 70 to 65 years—was passed, however when the Democratic-controlled Senate concurred with the Assembly in the bill This will clear the way for acceptance of approximately $10,000,000 annually in federal funds

Another of the chief executive's program measures went down to defeat in the waning hours when both branches flatly rejected attempts to revive the long dormant congressional and legislative reapportionment bills.

All hope of approval of a proposal for a constitutional amendment to permit pari-mutuel betting was shattered in the early morning hours when the Senate rejected Senator Dunnigan's measure by a vote of 12 ayes to 33 noes.

Bills to Governor

Scores of bills went to Governor Lehman's desk during the closing hours of New York's Legislature

Among the major measures were those proposing.

Centralization of unemployment relief administration in a permanent authority within the state social welfare department.

Reduction of the old age pension limit from 70 to 65 years

A 48-hour working week for all classes of state employes

Fuel-electric engines operated by any railroad must be manned with a crew of not less than one engineer and one fireman, or helper

To authorize the Whiteface Mountain highway commission to construct an elevator and shaft on the peak of Whiteface Mountain, and issue $1,500,000 in bonds to refund previous issues and provide funds for the additional construction.

To prohibit political parties from using the national flag of any foreign country as the party emblem.

Expenditure of state moneys for advertising the state highway in Essex county leading to top of Whiteface Mountain.

Creation of a temporary state commission to investigate the need for a court house in Albany for the appellate division of the supreme court, third division, and the availability of one of more sites.

Providing no beer shall be sold or served at a bar unless a card or plate visible to the customer stating the name of the brewer is affixed to the tap or faucet from which the beer is drawn.

Arson Law Tightened.

To tighten the arson law by permitting convictions on the uncorroborated testimony of two or more accomplices, with the provision that the court can instruct a jury not to convict if he believes the testimony insufficient.

Extension of the civil service credits to employes of emergency relief bureaus as a part of the previously approved plan to transfer the activities of the emergency relief administration permanently to the department of social welfare.

To permit dog racing on County Fair Grounds in the counties of Erie Monroe and Nassau.

Optional forms of County Government, to be decided by the people by referendum

Bills by Wayside

Also, scores of bills fell by the wayside as the legislature sped to adjournment today

Among them were those proposing

To legalize pin and "crane" games

To create State Police Training schools for local patrolmen and officers

To prohibit the sale of beer on Sundays from 3 a m to 1 p m, and on any other day between 3 a m and 8 a m, except in New York city where closing hours shall be between 4 and 8 a m

A constitutional amendment for pari-mutuel betting

Barrus Spoke to Food Merchants

John Barrus, nationally known lecturer in the credit line on grocery concerns, addressed members of the Ulster Provisioners' Association at their regular meeting Monday evening, stressing the value of sound balance in advertising

His lecture was followed by an educational picture, showing the modern trends in merchandising based on advertising in various mediums.

Women Dislike British Ban on Consular Jobs

By OSCAR LEIDING

London (AP)—The British government wants no Ruth Bryan Owens in its foreign service.

A woman may sit on the throne, or in the House of Commons or in the cabinet—but diplomatic and consular careers are to remain closed to her.

"The time has not yet arrived," the government has announced, "when women could be employed either in the consular service or in the diplomatic service with advantage to the state or with profit to the women."

This decision was announced after the question of admitting women had been surveyed by a government committee headed by Sir Claud Schuster.

Well-known women were quick to express their dissent with the government's announcement.

Lady Astor Objects

American-born Lady Astor said: "The old diplomacy has failed as the chaotic state of the world testifies. The very desperation of civilization's plight should be sufficient for us to insist that these petty barriers of sex be swept away to give place to the larger and far more vital consideration of the best brains for the job, wherever they may be found."

"In most foreign countries women are admitted to these services now," said Miss Marjorie Green, secretary of the National Council for Equal Citizenship. "I am afraid we are behind the times."

Lady Snowden commented: "I see no reason why all women should be excluded from these posts. It has not been suggested that the average woman should take up this work, but only ones eminently suited for it."

Work Too Difficult

"In the very large majority of consular posts," the government announced, "officers have to deal with a number of matters which it would be difficult for the average woman to handle . . . women would in practice find themselves hampered and restricted.

At the same time diplomatic and consular careers were closed to British women, a recruiting drive for more women police was started in London.

With some 70 women in its service as police, Scotland yard began to look for more unmarried "women of character and keenness, possessing good education and sound physique."

Their starting pay is approximately $13.75 a week, with allowance for lodgings extra.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

WILD HORSE HERD COMES BACK IN FOREST OF POLAND

Bialowieza, Poland (AP).—The wild horses of Poland are going to get a chance to come back.

The Bialowieza forest used to be full of them, but by the beginning of the nineteenth century they had disappeared. Scientists, however, contended that some of the horses pulling plows on farms in this region were pure-blooded descendants of the wild steeds.

So ten of them, judged by experts to be without any taint of ordinary domestic horse ancestry, have been turned loose in the woods to multiply. They are under the special protection of the forest administration, which hopes to have the same luck with them as with European bison.

Before the war these bison used to be the main attraction of the Bialowieza forest. In the war years, however, food was more important than any other consideration to a lot of people. What the German soldiers didn't shoot, the Polish peasants killed; bison meat was admittedly good food for hungry people.

When the war was over it was all over with the bison, too. But the forest administration bought a few bison from zoological gardens in other countries, turned them loose in the woods, and now there are a lot of them again.

② -THAT YOU CAN CUT DOWN THE RUSTING OF HOT WATER LINES— WITHOUT INSTALLING NEW PIPES.
① -THAT AUTOMATIC WATER-HEATERS ARE NOW MADE WITH TWO SPEEDS, TO MEET EVERY HOME NEED
③ ELECTRICITY TO RUN THE WASHING MACHINE COSTS ONLY $1.50 PER YEAR IN THE AVERAGE FAMILY—

EXPLANATIONS

1. The new economy models of automatic gas water-heaters deliver a generous supply of hot water, but a limited amount, set in advance. Now water-heaters are available with this economy feature, but with the added convenience of larger heating capacity for special occasions, when large amounts of hot water are needed quickly, as for several baths in rapid succession.

2. The rusting of water lines is greatly increased by very high temperatures. That is why hot water lines rust much more than cold. However, you may have all the hot water you want, as hot as you can use it, and still have no noticeable rusting, if temperatures are guarded from going too high. That's why homes using automatic storage water-heating do not have rusty hot water. Water temperatures are protected against going above about 140 degrees. The heat that causes excessive rusting is above that.

3. At Central Hudson rates, the average electric washing machine uses about one penny's worth of electricity per hour of use. Allowing three hours use per week, for fifty weeks of the year, the total cost is not more than $1.50 for a year's washings. Homes using a number of other electric appliances may qualify for still lower rates.

Brooklyn Link Sought

New York, May 14 (AP)—Assistant Police Chief Inspector John A. Lyons said today that Detectives Frank Phillips and William Wallace had been sent to Middletown, N. Y., in efforts to link two men arrested there with the $427,950 machine-gun robbery of the Brooklyn Rubel Ice Company, August 21, 1934.

The suspects, John (Archie) Stewart anu Stewart Wallace were arrested by state troopers and held at Middletown last night for investigation of the holdup of the Pine Bush National Bank there.

Wallace, Inspector Lyons said, is suspected of participation in the robbery in which ten men took part. Both the men, Inspector Lyons said, are also suspects in an Edgewater, N. J., bank holdup earlier this year.

Lemke Will Carry Issue to Front Lines Of the Political Wars

Washington, May 14 (AP).—Democratic leaders pointed today to the fate of the Frazier-Lemke farm refinancing bill, smashed down in the House, as a sure sign that "there will be no inflation."

In the defeated camp, Representative Lemke (R.-N. D.), who had labored five years for the bill to print $3,000,000,000 in new money to refinance farm mortgages on easy terms, said that the issue would be carried into the front lines of the political wars. He also announced it would be re-introduced today in the hope legislators might "repent."

Smiling grimly, he received condolences of his friends over the 235 to 142 beating handed the bill yesterday amid the whoops of its jubilant opponents.

"It wasn't so bad," Lemke said. "We'll get back here next January, and there won't be quite as many familiar faces as there are now—at least not from the farm states."

When reporters asked whether he expected to make a strong political issue of the bill, Lemke said:

"Absolutely. It already is."

After nearly seven hours of the most violent battling witnessed on the floor this session, 173 Democrats and 62 Republicans roared their disapproval of the bill. Three Farmer-Laborites, 8 Progressives, 27 Republicans and 105 Democrats lined up behind it.

Opponents hammered it as inflationary; advocates said it would preserve the homes of the nation's farmers.

Famous Maps of Path to Young Woman's Heart

As one journeys along the Rhone in France from Avignon, it becomes an easy matter to explain the famous maps of the "Path to a Young Woman's Heart," which the Courts of Love, held here in Seventeenth century, delighted in making.

Tarascon, down the river from Avignon takes in good part the sly fun poked at the character of the city's inhabitants in the tale, "Tartarin of Tarascon." The people of the town now go so far as to sell pictures of Tartarin on his expedition in the Alps, and some will even point out to gullible travelers the place where he lived.

Arles, also in this vicinity, is famed for its Roman antiquities. Its amphitheater is about 500 yards in circumference, has 43 tiers of seats and holds about 26,000 spectators. In the summer months it is the scene of many bull-fights. The old theater of Arles was also built by the Romans, although it was designed by a Greek architect.

Where the Rhone divides before entering the Mediterranean, it forms a salt delta, the Camargue, which is one of the most romantic regions of Provence. Flamingoes with pink feathers inhabit its marshes, herds of cattle roam its fields, and steer-roping and branding are a part of everyday life. The cowboys of the region are expert, and their small white horses are very intelligent, taking as lively an interest in the games of their riders as the men do.

Tradition says that here the three Maries, Mary of Bethany, Mary, the mother of James, and Mary Magdalen, with their servant, Sarah, landed when they sailed away from the Holy Land after the Crucifixion. Sarah, an Egyptian, has become the saint of the gypsies, and in May they congregate here in colorful throngs to worship in the Church of the Saintes Maries de la Mer.

Use of Veneer Is Age-Old Manufacturing Practice

Veneering is not a product of the machine age. It was used by the ancient Egyptians in making their furniture and has been considered the best manufacturing practice for more than 3,000 years.

The most beautiful figures in wood are often found in what is known as the "diseased" parts of the tree. That is, the tree may have been injured, developed a growth or some other "disfigurement" that gives to the cabinet-making trades some of the most beautiful patterns in wood design. These sections of the tree are carefully cut into sheets, glued into patterns by hundreds of pieces of strong tape and attached to the core wood. This is an extremely technical part of cabinet making and requires the services of a man well versed in the art.

If all table tops, for instance, were solid, they would not have near the attractiveness which veneers provide. One firm has a mahogany dining table the top of which looks like a ripple of stain ribbon, and furniture authorities have stated that this design probably would never appear again in all history.

With the present manufacturing processes there is little danger of solid wood warping. The only objection to solid-wood furniture is that it lacks the beauty of veneered furniture. The "straight wood," as it is called—generally taken from the trunk of the tree—is likely to be just what the name implies.

New Roman Empire

Rome, May 14 (AP)—The Chamber of Deputies unanimously ratified the bill creating an Italian empire in the presence of Premier Mussolini and his entire government today. The regimented deputies were uniformed in black shirts. They were enthusiastic. Watching the vote from the diplomatic gallery was Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation to the League of Nations, who had just returned from Geneva. Near him were the ambassadors of Germany and Japan and the minister of Austria.

Borah's Latest Attack On G. O. P. Leadership Has Capital Guessing

By EDWARD J. DUFFY.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, May 14 (AP).—Senator Borah's latest attack on the Republican leadership had many in the capital guessing today about his intentions in the Cleveland convention next month and thereafter.

His statement, in comment on the reverse he suffered in his primary contest with the regular party organization in Ohio on Tuesday, said negro voters had been told "the Republican party will pass the (Wagner-Costigan) anti-lynching bill."

The Idahian has long opposed this legislation on grounds of unconstitutionality. He said it "strikes at the very heart of state sovereignty."

He asserted that by advocating it, the men "who are in control of the party and who will likely be in control of the convention, will write its platform and name its candidate, have already demonstrated they care nothing about constitutional integrity or the preservation of state's rights, that their talk on this subject is hypocritical and intellectually dishonest."

The statement was the latest contribution to the uncertain situation within the party. Some weeks ago Borah said he would reserve the right to look over the candidate before pledging support.

Although the last major Republican primary contest has passed, leaders seemed little nearer agreement today about the prospects for Cleveland than in months last.

If the pre-convention struggles together proved anything finally, it evidentally was that uninstructed delegates would wield power to an unusual extent. Of the 860 so far selected, 719 are unbound.

None of the possibilities for the presidential nomination has claimed a delegate strength approaching the necessity majority, 501 of the 1,001 total.

Supporters of Governor Landon of Kansas have predicted his nomination on an early ballot, however. Against him some of the Borah leaders have been outspoken.

Forces favoring Colonel Frank Knox of Illinois or Borah, among others, have conceded nothing to the claims of Landon men.

Knox, continuing his campaign with an address last night at Seattle, declared he stood "uncompromisingly for a budget to be balanced immediately."

With convention-time drawing nearer the Democrats are working to line up an all-Roosevelt demonstration. Six delegates to be named today in Vermont will bring the list to date to 640 of the 1,100 total.

Some party leaders who have opposed the New Deal or certain of its policies are included. Whether they will seek to dissent at Philadelphia remains to be seen.

It had appeared possible that Alfred E. Smith, as a member of the New York delegation, might make some protest move there. Now there seems to be little likelihood of his attending. He has yet to indicate whether he will participate in the campaign itself.

Twenty-nine of the 141 delegates so far instructed are Borah's against 96 for Landon and 16 for Governor Nice of Maryland.

Senator Vandenberg was endorsed for Michigan's 38 votes. Senator Dickinson is expected to get Iowa's 22 at the start, Robert A. Taft appeared at the latest counting to be the nominal winner of 47 of Ohio's 52, and I. M. Meekins was endorsed for the 23 from North Carolina.

The 141 Republican delegates yet to be chosen are distributed among Oregon, Nevada, Montana, New Jersey, Alabama, Illinois (eight at large), Texas and Indiana. Oregon and Nevada act tomorrow and Saturday respectively.

Harry Miller A Winner

It was announced this afternoon over Radio Station WOKO that Harry Miller, soloist of 93 Broadway, was last week's winner in the radio singing contest and is now eligible to appear in the finals.

St. Joseph's Holy Name Communion

Friday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a meeting of the Holy Name breakfast ticket committee in St. Joseph's School hall for final reports on arrangements for the event which is to be held Sunday morning at the Governor Clinton Hotel after the 8 o'clock Mass.

This year's annual communion breakfast will be something novel. There will be in attendance delegations from the postal department, police department, paid fire department, and Boy Scouts in uniform, also from the association of attorneys and physicians.

Guest speaker at the breakfast will be the Rev. James M. Gillis, editor of the Catholic World, and famous radio speaker.

Tickets for the breakfast are selling rapidly, and those who have not purchased theirs but intend to attend the affair are advised to do so on or before Friday night. They are on sale by members of the committee and at St Joseph's rectory, and will be sold also at the meeting tomorrow night in the school hall.

May Have to Build Two Sewage Disposal Plants for $600,000

State Health Department to Require All Cities Disposing of Sewage in Waters of Hudson River or its Tributaries to Build Such Plants and Have Them Operating by 1938.

That Kingston within the next few years will have to build two sewage disposal plants, one located at Kingston Point and the other in Wilbur, was brought out at the meeting of the Board of Public Works last night in the office of Mayor C. J. Heiselman in the city hall. The approximate cost would total $600,000, or $300,000 each.

The fact that all cities using the waters of the Hudson river or its tributaries to dispose of sewage would have to erect sewage disposal plants was brought out in a communication from the state health department granting permission for the city to construct sanitary sewers in Hasbrouck and Second avenues. A provision on the permit stated that on or before November 1, satisfactory detailed plans for interception and treatment of entire sanitary sewage of the city shall be submitted to the state health board for approval, and that on or before November 1, 1938, the sewage disposal plant shall be ready for operation.

Sanborn & Bogert, consulting engineers, who have done considerable work for the city, have offered to prepare a report and study of the the sewage situation which would prove acceptable to the state health board for the sum of $700. The communication from this concern was filed for the time being.

Mayor Heiselman said that in discussing the sewage situation in Kingston the probabilities were that if the city had to erect a sewage disposal plant it would be necessary to erect two, one in the Kingston Point section and the other in the Wilbur section of the city. The approximate cost of each plant would be $300,000.

The board took no action at this time on the question of building the disposal plants.

Recital Friday by Blind Musician

Friday evening a musical and dramatic recital will be presented by Irving Whitaker at Epworth Hall, corner of Liberty street and Clinton avenue, sponsored by the Rev. Mr. McGrath's Sunday school class

Mr. Whitaker, although blind from about the age of seven, has achieved the distinction of being one of the most accomplished musicians and speakers in this vicinity. He is an Ulster county boy, having been born in Saugerties and later made his home in Kingston, until at the age of 11 he entered the School for the Blind at Batavia, N. Y., where he has attended for the past eight years.

His audience tomorrow night is expected to be even larger than it was at the recital at the Wurts Street Baptist Church two years ago, because his accomplishments are now better known.

The program will be as follows:

Piano—
Gavotte (from First French Suite) . J. S. Bach
Songs—
At Dawning ..... Cadman
Like as the Hart Desireth .. Allitsen
Piano—

Y. W. C. A. Dinner Friday at 6:10

The opening dinner of the Y. W. C. A. budget campaign will be held Friday evening at the association at 6:10. At this time the campaign captains and workers will assemble to receive instructions and the prospect cards and it is hoped that everyone on the "drive" will make a special effort to be present.

The speaker of the dinner will be George W. Watson of Albany, district executive of the National Youth Administration. He is a man of wide experience in character - building organization work and the campaign committee feels most fortunate to have secured him, it being made possible by the fact that the Ulster County Advisory Council of the N. Y. A. is meeting here on that date. Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman will give the drive the official send-off, and other trustees and members of the campaign committee will also attend.

Public affairs would be easier to follow if so many statesmen didn't proceed in three different directions at the same time.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt's prescription—HEM ROID—to relieve itching, bleeding or protruding piles. This internal medicine acts quickly in mild stubborn cases. HEM ROID shrinks hemorrhoids in judge to heal and restore the affected parts and relieves blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this; that's why salves and cutting often fail. Medicine drug stores and all druggists sell one bottle of HEM ROID. FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By Associated Press

Big Wind.

Meriden, Conn.—Answering an alarm, Deputy Fire Chief Arthur Harris and four companies of firemen found the owner of an automobile trying frantically to put out a fire around the carburetor of the car—without success.

Harris merely took a deep breath, bent over the engine and blew lustily into the flames. That ended the fire.

Jekyl-Hyde Turtle

Newark, N. J.—"Nip" and "Tuck" arrived at the Newark airport in the handbag of Miss Grace Olive Wiley of the Minneapolis Public Library

"Nip" was the right head, and "Tuck" the left head of a two-headed snapping turtle.

Miss Wiley, former Chicago zoological society curator, said X-ray pictures showed each of the turtle's heads was connected to a separate stomach.

Monotonous Job

Los Angeles—The following things have happened to Steeple Jack Charlie England this week:

He fell 140 feet before catching in a maze of ropes; his pants caught fire from a blowtorch and a pulley fell on his head.

"Once a woodpecker lit on my shoulder and began a tatton in the region behind my ear," England recalled. That, he said, was something.

Soviet Tragedy Disclosed

Moscow, May 14 (AP).—A tragedy fo the Soviet northland was brought to light today with the discovery on barren Chukhotsk Peninsula of the wreckage of an airplane and the body of one of its crew of three. The plane had been missing nearly five months. The man had died of cold and starvation.

Daniel Webster was a firm believer in deep tillage. A century ago, convinced that plowing was too shallow, Webster developed a plow 12 feet long from the tips of the handles to the tip of the beam, with a share 15 inches wide, according to records in the Bureau of Agricurture Engineering. The plow was designed to turn a furrow 12 to 14 inches deep. Eight oxen pulled it.

Testimony Continued In Trial of Luciano

New York, May 14 (AP).—A 25-year-old woman who operated a house of prostitution in West 77th street testified today at the trial of Charles (Lucky) Luciano and nine other men that she paid $10 a week "bond" money for each girl she employed to alleged representatives of Luciano.

The witness identified herself as Dorothy Arnold, also known as Doris Sherman, a native of Virginia, who came to New York in 1934. Her husband, she said, was a lingerie salesman who quit work when she entered business last year.

Luciano and the others are charged with compulsory prostitution.

Mrs. Arnold, under questioning by Thomas E. Dewey, special rackets prosecutor, and an assistant, Barent Ten Eyck, said she first obtained young women to work for her through Nick Montana, now serving a Sing Sing prison term for compulsory prostitution, and later through Peter Ballitzer, one of three defendants who pleaded guilty at the start of this trial.

Some time later, she testified, two men she knew as "Chappie" and "Teddy" came to her house and began collecting $10 a week. Dewey charges these men were employed by the syndicate he alleges was headed by Luciano. Mrs. Arnold said she demurred at first when the men asked for the money, but in the end paid to protect herself.

She admitted, in answer to a question by Dewey, she had never seen Luciano. She said she kept a record of the girls' earnings, which ranged from $20 to $30 a night, by means of cards which were punched.

Cross-examined by Samuel Siegal, she insisted she was telling the truth and had not changed her story after her arrest.

She was followed on the stand by a girl who identified herself as Mary Thomas, formerly of Elizabeth, N. J.

Dewey said yesterday Luciano and his lieutenants operated 200 disorderly houses.

Two admitted prostitutes, Rose Cohen, 25, and Muriel Ryan, 24, were called as yesterday's first witnesses.

Uptown Meets Downtown Tonight

Alderman-at-large John J. Schwenk will throw out the first ball at the softball contest between the uptown and downtown bankers' teams this evening on the Fair Grounds. Both teams anticipate an overwhelming defeat for their opponents, and if forecasts are anywhere near accurate, spectators will be well repair for attending the game. Two well-known local softball players will officiate and keep the minds of the players upon the game.

CLAIMS ONE OF THE FASTEST TEAMS IN THIS SECTION

The Catskill Appleknockers, which according to Manager Kaplan is one of the fastest and strongest softball clubs in this section of the state and with a record of four straight pre-season victories, will play their first league game tonight, meeting the Altamari Aces at Hasbrouck Park.

Their infield is composed of George Fleming, George Chilson, Jimmy McElrath, Bob Purvis, Herb VanDeusen, Don Plough and Ruble Lewis; pitchers, Ben Fein, Art Kaplan, Rube Fishman; outfielders, Hymie Aduchefsky, Rufus Post, Chype Rhymer, Eddie Noonan, George Bush, Jack Kelly, Tom Duffy and Dave Bunting.

The Appleknockers will represent Williams Lake Sundays, starting Decoration Day. Manager Kaplan expects to book some of the fastest semi-pro softball teams in New York and New Jersey.

Heavy Gold Drain

Paris, May 14 (AP)—The flight of capital after the Leftist victory in the recent parliamentary elections drained 2,759,000,000 francs ($161,569,000) in gold from the Bank of France during the week ending May 8, a bank statement revealed today. The loss, the heaviest this year, increased the lowering of the gold reserves to 7,650,000,000 francs ($506,220,000) since March 20.

10 Days For Morrow

It was 10 days in jail today for Morrow when he was arraigned before Judge Cullelon in police court today. Morrow, whose first name is Joshua, and who said he lives in Rotterville, was arrested on a charge of public intoxication. The police had received complaints yesterday that there was a man going from house to house on West O'Reilly street, annoying the householders.

FHA Designs New Low Cost Home For 'Pioneer' Life In Modern Way

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington (AP).—The Federal Housing Administration has found that the lowest price a family can pay in an average community for a livable, durable house is $1,200.

The price will vary, says FHA, in different geographic sections, depending on prices of building materials and labor. The average price was found by studying building supply cost lists from various sections.

The $1,200 does not cover the cost of the lot. FHA has found that lots can be had for as low as $300 in some sections, and that the average runs from $450 to $600. Those prices cover lots ranging from 35 to 50 feet wide and 100 to 150 feet long. The house may be built under FHA's insured mortgage plan which permits the buyer 20 years to pay.

Has No Basement

Floor plans for the house reduce living conveniences to the lowest common denominator, but omit none of the necessities, FHA architects say. The house has two bedrooms, a bath, hall, and a third room where the family, like pioneer folk of old, live, cook and eat.

The all-purpose room is 11.3 by 21.4 feet. One bedroom is 9.8 by 11.3 feet, the other is 8.6 by 9.6 feet, and the bath is "just big enough to turn around in."

The house is planned without a basement, one of the elements which had to be eliminated in order to achieve the low price. The house is designed to set on a concrete slab reinforced with a wire mesh laid over a gravel bed. The cement slab becomes the floor of the house which can be painted if desired.

The walls, of either eight-inch brick or concrete block, are lined inside with wood strips and plaster. The papering or painting is included in the price.

Colorful Kitchen Fixtures

Along one wall of the living-room is a miniature kitchen arrangement which includes a sink and cabinet, a cooking range and a heater. If the prospective home-owner has an extra $300 he can shut these conveniences off in a separate room.

All three of the iron enamelled kitchen fixtures may be bought in colors to blend with the rest of the room. The range and heater can use coal, gas, oil or electricity. The heater warms the living room and ducts carry heat to the other rooms. In warmer climates the ducts are unnecessary.

Armored cable for the electric wiring has been figured into the price, as well as both base-board and ceiling outlets.

The roof can be wood, tin or composition shingles, and pitched or flat. FHA architects favor the pitched roof because it provides storage space which can be reached through a trap door in a bedroom ceiling.

Waste Eliminated

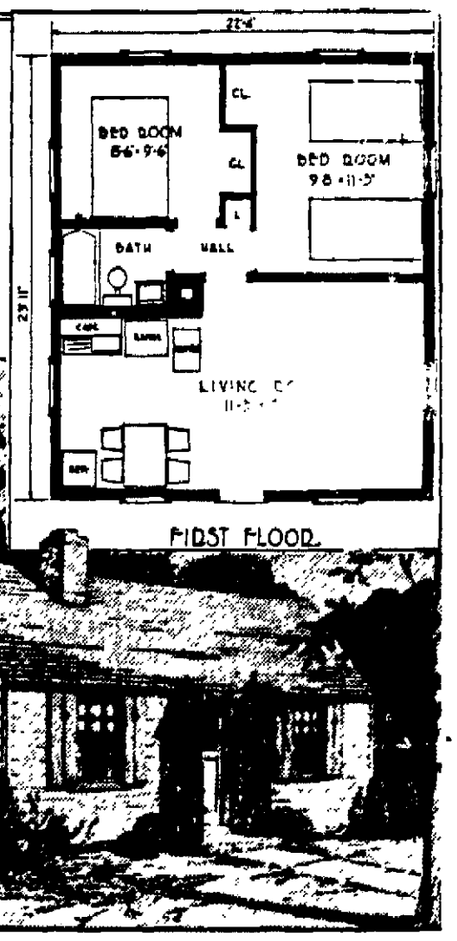
The secret of this minimum-cost house is declared to lie not so much in use of the cheapest materials, but in the use of stock sizes of lumber and trimmings which may be nailed or cemented into place without extra figuring and sawing.

A man earning as low as $900 a year could afford such a home, according to FHA estimates, even if he bought a $600 lot.

FHA estimates that a regularly employed head-of-a-house can indebt himself for a home costing twice the amount of his annual salary. This means that a man earning $900 a year could spend $1,800, $1,200 for the house and $600 for the lot.

FHA is ready to supply would-be home owners with information about planning and building small houses.

THE plans for this house, designed by the federal housing administration, call for no frills but lots of comfort. The bungalow may be built for about $1,200, exclusive of the price of the lot, the cost varying with the locality.



STILL NEED CAMELS IN TRANSPORTATION

Just as Important in Arid Regions as Ever.

Washington.—The camel, although without modern streamline effects, and rather clumsy, is still respected in the transportation field where there are much sand, little water and no roads. Some deserts have been spanned by modern roads, rendering the behumped ruminant somewhat useless, but until all deserts are so spanned, the camel will remain indispensable.

"Camels are just as important in arid regions of Ethiopia today as they have been in some past wars," says the National Geographic society.

"That camel corps were a part of the armies of the Allies during the World war is common knowledge, but, perhaps, few American laymen are aware that in 1856, 75 camels were imported to form a Camel corps to patrol the southwestern desert regions of this country.

"Prehistoric Arabs perceived the usefulness of the camel, endured his passive viciousness, and made him the chief means of sustaining life wherever they wandered over the desert regions of Arabia and Africa. Thus the name 'Arabian camel,' though he is believed to be an American emigrant, came to identify the tawny, long-necked, long-legged, single-humped 'ship of the desert.' His habitat has isolated him so that he is practically an animal outcast, feared and avoided by the few other beasts he encounters.

Still a Cud-Chewer.

"This disinherited son of the ruminant family was cut off by his relatives, the cattle and deer, without a single horn, without a trace of second and fifth toes, with only the smallest ears, and minus one stomach. But he still clings to the good old cud-chewer family trait of a two-way digestive system in the three stomachs he has.

"Since being on his own in the desert, he has worked hard for a living and has acquired a few little comforts of his own. Callous cushions on feet, knees, and chest have helped him endure hard desert surfaces. He has learned how to close his oblique nostrils against dust and sand. His hump of muscle and fat is a convenient store-room for extra energy. His foot, with its two toes covered with a cushion-like pad of hardened skin, expands under his weight and prevents his sinking too deeply into sand. It can even be half-soled; caravan guides and drivers carry a piece of leather to sew over it when he is lamed by wearing the whole skin away. Within his digestive tract he can store a gallon or two of water for future use. His only claim to beauty, his very long eyelashes, are also a great business asset, for they protect his keen vision against sun glare and drifting sand.

"This adaptation to desert life has made the camel the most important domestic animal in Africa. A census some years ago in Cirenaica, Libia, estimated that the camel population exceeded the human by 30 to 1—5,000,000 camels for 230,000 people.

The Camel Family.

"If camel family history could be handed down from beast to beast, would a weary Arabian camel lament that his antediluvian ancestors had reputedly trekked across the Bering sea isthmus from North America into Asia? Would he envy his distant relatives running wild in Turkestan, either never enslaved by man or freed from him by the fabulous Takiamakan sand storm which buried human beings but could not smother camels with closed nostrils? Those would be the only Asiatic cousins to envy, for all the other members of the Bactrian side of the camel family—those stockier shaggy specimens with two humps—are entirely domesticated. Perhaps he would speculate about his South American cousins, who have no hump at all to show for their camel heritage—the llamas, vicunas, guanacos, and alpacas.

"The life of the Arabian camel is undeniably burdensome. A chief source of income around the Libian desert is breeding camels to sell to caravans, in some of which as many as 1,000 file along at 2½ miles per hour for 16 hours a day. As a desert pack animal the camel is unsurpassed. One can carry 33 gallons of water in light metal tanks, or a little less in the native sheepskin 'bottles.' His average pack load varies in weight from 250 pounds to 1,000.

"His ability to dispense entirely with water is frequently overestimated. Lacking both water and grazing, the camel can hardly exist longer than a few days. For a long time, however, camels may be gizu, by which Arabs mean 'content-with-green-herbage-so-that-they-do-not-need-to-drink.' A whole herd may be penned up in a waterless valley for two or three months where rain has brought a covering of green growth, and at the end of that time they will emerge fat and sleek, with great firm humps indicating physical fitness. The supreme delicacy on the camel menu is a nose-bagful of tree leaves or thorny shrubs."

Zaven Melik to Appear for A.A.Party

The Kingston High School Athletic Association will hold its annual party this evening at the high school.

The entertainment which consists of the Columbians and acts by Dorothea Groves, Jeanne Molyneaux, Carl Studer, Irving Rose, The Bottle Boys, Art Fritog, Bob Everett, Tom O'Hara, Eddie Ford, will take place in the auditorium at 8 o'clock.

As the leading feature of the evening Zaven Melik has consented to assume his previous roles, both as a concert baritone and as an artist with his usual chalk talk.

Two years ago his caricatures of various teachers, the exact imitations of teachers' signatures and various impersonations of prominent faculty members was the hit of the season.

Mr. Melik, who directs the Art Academy in Kingston will be obliged to appear as the final number on the program because of his own art school schedule. He will be brought down to school just in time for his inimitable charcoal sketches and his baritone numbers.

During his sketching of teachers the uproar is tremendous and it is expected everyone will attend to see and hear this artist whose last public appearance was two years ago.

After the entertainment the audience will proceed to the gym where the Columbians will furnish dance music until 11:30

Small Tornado Hits Esopus Valley

and the hail cut off these tender plants. The damage is estimated at fully one-third of the crop and in places the hail was so heavy that entire crops were destroyed. In addition to the crops which had been planted in the fields many of the market gardeners lost their small plants in hot-beds The severe heat had made it necessary to remove the glass from hot-beds and cold-frames during the day and the storm came on with such suddenness that it was impossible to replace the glass and the tender plants were cut to ribbons

Milton Walker's farm suffered heavily Reben's poultry farm reported damage of about $500 when roof tops were blown from poultry houses to a distance of 150 feet

While the storm was felt in all its fury on Hurley avenue there was much less hail on Lucas avenue, only a short distance away. The brunt of the storm was felt in the immediate vicinity of the Esopus Creek valley.

In the heavy fruit belt south of Kingston there apparently was little damage from hail although rain fell in torrents

The most severe part of the storm at Hurley came on about 3.30 o'clock and this storm did not strike Kingston except in the extreme upper section. Kingston however was visited by a downpour about 6 o'clock but little hail was reported here.

The New York Telephone Co reports but little damage from the storm. There were about a dozen lines out of order and repair crews quickly re-established service Most of the damage was due to trees falling or from fallen branches

Light Service Cut Off

Emergency crews of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation were kept on the jump for several hours restoring service in isolated sections but there was no general disturbance Service in several sections was cut at times due to the effect of lightning on transformers and from broken transmission lines where trees or large branches had been twisted off but the interruptions were quickly cared for In some sections small groups of customers were without service and this was particularly so in the section about Kerhonkson, Hurley and St. Remy but by midnight all service had been restored None of the main lines of the company were affected and the difficulty was confined to secondary lines.

In the city the storm took out secondaries and there were isolated interruptions from fallen branches and broken wires but throughout the afternoon and evening there was no serious or lengthy breakdown of service.

During the height of the storm about 6 o'clock it became extremely dark and street lights were turned on and motorists were compelled to drive with headlights on

Following the storm temperatures dropped and during the night it became extremely cool and this morning thermometers which had been registering mid-summer temperatures on Wednesday were down well under the fifty degree mark and top-coats again made their appearance on the streets Rising temperatures are predicted for Friday

Elmendorf Crop Damaged

Ray Elmendorf, who operates one of the largest apple orchards and fruit farms in the lower Esopus valley where the severe storm swept through Wednesday afternoon, reported today that after an inspection of his apple orchards near Hurley he found a large part of the crop had been damaged by the hail stones As high as 25 per cent of the crop showed signs of damage where the hail stones cut the small apples which have already set To just what extent the fruit will recover cannot be told at this time but even though the hail cuts heal over much of the crop will be damaged

Cherries were also damaged in the locality and the estimated damage will be from 15 per cent to 25 per cent. The past few days had brought out the foliage to a considerable extent and provided some protection from the hail stones for the apples which are now forming but the loss will be quite severe in the localities where the hail struck

Several large trees on the William Warren estate on the Mountain road at Hurley were blown down by the high wind which accompanied the storm.

Moore of St Mary's Church, sub-deacon Seated within the chancel during the Mass were the Rev Father Kenny of Barrytown, the Rev Edmund P Burke and the Rev John Manning of St Joseph s Church The responses to the Mass were sung by Thomas Dolan, who also rendered "Ave Maria at the offertory and "Beautiful Land on High' as the body was borne from the church edifice Mrs Frank Rafferty presided at the organ

The esteem in which Mr Goldrick was held was testified to not only by the large number of friends who attended the services at the church but by the profuse display of beautiful floral remembrances, which banked the casket at the home in Goldrick s Landing

The large delegations that viewed the remains at the home included members of the Kingston Police Department, headed by Mayor Heiselman and Police Chief Wood, members of Kingston Lodge of Elks, Mr Goldrick being one of its oldest members There were also representations from the state, Postmaster General James A Farley being a nephew of the deceased.

The bearers, all employes of the Goldrick Corporation, were John J Heneberry, Michael A Hart, Paul Caban, Michael A Hart, Jr., James Hart and Charles Sangaline Interment was made in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, the Rev Fathers Fant, Burke and Manning accompanying the remains to the cemetery and pronouncing the final absolution at the grave.

GRECO IS CONDUCTING BAND NOT A BANK AS WAS STATED

Inadvertently the typesetter made an error of one letter in setting up an item regarding the fact that Ernest P. Greco of 614 Broadway is conducting the Convention City Band of Kingston. Instead of the word "band," however, the typesetter set in "bank" and since then Mr. Greco's friends and acquaintances have kept his telephone busy with calls asking if he had any jobs as cashier open in his bank and what rates of interest he was paying. This is to inform Mr. Greco's many friends that it is a band he is conducting and not a bank.

People of Bahrein

The majority of the inhabitants of the Bahrein islands, off the Persian coast, make their living by pearl diving. Others build boats, weave sailcloth and reed mats, work in the oil fields, raise dates, breed donkeys, or using a peculiar kind of weed as bait, catch the fish so prolific in the Persian gulf, says the National Geographic society

Most of the archipelago's 120,000 inhabitants are Arabs, although there are European and American "colonies" and communities of wealthy Iranian (Persian) and Indian merchants. Minarets towering above the date groves indicate that the native religion is Mohammedan

Stretching for over a mile along the north shore of Bahrein island is Manama, the chief port and commercial center of the archipelago. Connected with Manama by stone breaches and a stone causeway is Muharraq, another large town on an island of the same name, northeast of Bahrein

Promises Austria's Loyalty to Italy

By ALVIN J STEINKOPF
(Copyright, 1936, By Associated Press)

Vienna, May 14—After removing Prince Ernst von Starhemberg as vice-chancellor of Austria, Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's first act today was to promise Austria s loyalty to Italy.

Having thrown the powerful prince out of the government, the scholarly Schuschnigg rushed an assurance to Premier Mussolini that Austria remained Italy s loyal ally.

Indications were that Schuschnigg s move may have improved the friendly relations already existing between the two nations

Reports spread through high quarters that Il Duce was actually in no hurry to see Von Starhemberg although the prince, wealthy head of the Heimwehr (Home Guard) long had been regarded as a close friend of the Italian leader

These reports were accentuated when Von Starhemberg suddenly cancelled an airplane passage to Rome and his headquarters announced he would leave by train instead for the Italian capital tonight

Heimwehr officials said they were not even sure the prince would see Mussolini, explaining that he was going there primarily to see a football match next Sunday.

Officially Von Starhemberg now holds only one single post under the government, that of sports front leader.

Observers who said they had noticed the relations between Von Starhemberg and Mussolini cooling recalled that the prince in 1929 received an assignment to make Austria Fascist

The progress was said to be too slow to suit Mussolini and the Fascist idea gained little popularity despite the large expenditures on the project under Von Starhemberg.

It was emphasized at the chancellery that Italy's interest in maintaining Austria's independence was as great as ever and that Austria remains firmly convinced of the value of the independence pact with Rome

Norfolk Was Founded Soon After Jamestown Colony

Less than 30 years after the first permanent English settlement in America was made at Jamestown on May 13, 1607, Norfolk had its beginning, writes Georgia Dickinson Wardlaw in the Richmond Times Dispatch

At that time, this section of Virginia was inhabited by the Chesapeake Indians, one of many tribes under the powerful Powhatan and with whom Capt. Christopher Newport's men had a skirmish immediately after landing—and originally, the site of Norfolk was the location of an Indian village called Skicoak.

The year 1936 commemorates three notable anniversaries in Norfolk's history: The three hundredth anniversary of the granting of land covered by Norfolk county today, which was made in 1636 to Henry Frederick Howard, Lord Maltravers, who honored his kinsman, the duke of Norfolk, by naming the section Norfolk—

The two hundredth anniversary of the granting of the "Royal Charter of Norfolk Borough" on September 15, 1736—and

The one hundred and sixtieth anniversary of the burning of Norfolk by the British on January 1, 1776.

Originally the counties of Nansemond, Norfolk, and Princess Anne were one—called New Norfolk county. Soon after being explored, the territory was divided into Upper and Lower Norfolk counties. Today, Nansemond county embraces the section that was once Upper Norfolk, while Lower Norfolk is now Norfolk and Princess Anne counties.

In the beginning, the entire section was laid off in parishes, and a church erected in each parish. The early settlers established themselves on farms along the bays and rivers, where they built wharves at which ships from England and Holland could land and discharge and receive cargoes. For 75 years after the settlement at Jamestown, there were no other towns of any commercial importance in Virginia

In the year 1682, the Virginia assembly authorized the payment of 20,000 pounds of "tobacco and casks" to Nicholas Wise for 500 acres of his land on the eastern branch of the Elizabeth river. The purpose and payment was for the founding of a town, and the town was Norfolk.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

One notch above all the other surprises of the major league baseball season, which includes the miserable showings of last year's world series rivals, the Tigers and Cubs, the uncertain performance of the Giants and the complete failure of the Browns hurling corps, comes the showing of the Boston Bees.

A hopeless tail ender a year ago, the reorganized Bees have been showing signs of rejuvenation that can't be explained entirely by the new players they have acquired. By taking an exciting 10-inning decision from the Pirates yesterday, 4 to 3, the Bees moved into fifth place in the National League ahead of Cincinnati's Reds, who took a 9 to 7 pounding from the Phillies.

More orthodox performances were seen in the American League where the Yankees and Red Sox, running first and second, won the only other games that escaped the rains.

The Yanks trimmed the Browns 4-1 behind Monte Pearson's flinging while the Red Hose defeated the Tigers 3 to 1.

Not only have the Bees won 11 out of 23 games thus far to place just a game behind the Cubs, but their two ties and the overtime triumph yesterday indicate they have what it takes to come through in the clutches. The first Boston runs came in the fourth, when Al Lopez smacked a homer with one on, and gave the Bees a one-run lead. The Bucs tied it up in the next inning, then Waite Hoyt and Danny MacFayden hooked up in a relief hurling duel that wasn't decided until Hoyt gave up his first hit in the 10th.

"Deacon Danny" worked his rival for a pass to start the extra frame and took second on Bill Urbanski's sacrifice. At the crucial moment Baxter Jordan drove a hot single through the infield to end the game.

The Phils hit more effectively than the Reds although each team got 14 blows. Lee Handley and Ernie Lombardi of the Reds and Earl Grace of the Phils hit homers, and six triples and five doubles were tossed in. The payoff, however, came in the seventh inning when Relief Hurler Syl Johnson sent a pair of runs to climax a three-run winning rally.

Monte Pearson had little trouble subduing the Browns with six hits and an equal number of strikeouts to gain his fourth victory for the Yanks.

The Tigers could get only six blows off Rube Walberg and Fritz Ostermueller, Boston lefties. Seven walks off Walberg made trouble until Bill Werber belted his first homer of the season with two aboard to bring in all the Boston runs. Schoolboy Rowe, who retired after six innings because of a sore arm, was the victim of the fourth-inning wallop.

BOXER BEATS CHAMPION, APOLOGIZES FOR FIGHT

Tacoma, Wash. (AP).—Bashful Freddie Steele of Tacoma has an apology to make for the fight he put up against Middleweight Champion Babe Risko in Seattle recently.

"I'm sorry it wasn't a better battle, but I was up against a dangerous puncher and couldn't take too many chances," Freddie explained.

All Steele did was win the decision, six of the 10 rounds mess up the champion's face and win a couple of ribs. But most of Steele's friends expected a knockout, hence the alibi.

The Thin-Skinned Ones Should Stay Out of Baseball

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 14 (AP)—Cleveland's front office may be thoroughly justified in trying to put a judicial block on the "heckling" of Johnny Allen, the temperamental right-hander obtained in a trade with the New York Yankees, but there are pretty good reasons for suspecting it may prove a boomerang.

In the first place the publicity attached to the grievance, filed with President Will Harridge of the American League, hardly will soften the rival attitude or tactics so far as Allen is concerned. Nor can Harridge interfere without the risk of setting up a dangerous precedent or running counter to some of the most time-honored baseball traditions.

The none-too-gentle art of "riding" the opposition in professional baseball is firmly established as a part of the game. The question of fairness or unfairness is rarely raised in the national pastime. The payoff is on the results and not the methods by which they are obtained.

Baseline coaches or "jockeys" are rated largely on their ability to upset opposing players, particularly the pitcher. The umpires, of course, have authority to curb too much "riding" from the baselines or the bench. But the arbiters are so often the targets for abuse themselves that they are not unwilling at times to hear it heaped upon the players.

No Place for Sensitive Souls

In a sporting business where the competition is so keen, little consideration is given to the athlete with a sensitive soul. There have been instances where top-notch players quit because they could not stand the razzing. If, as in Allen's case, there's a particular method of getting the player's goat, it is not likely to be overlooked by the more rugged individualists.

Occasionally the "riding" of the opposition has had a reverse effect from the one sought. The Athletics of 1925 attributed their failure to win the pennant to excessive "jockeying." That year the A's led the league when they started their last western swing in August. They had one of the game's foremost jockeys in Wally French, former West Pointer. But they made the mistake of turning French loose on George Sisler of the Browns and then on Ty Cobb of the Tigers. The reaction of both stars was to play their heads off and contribute largely to a string of setbacks which knocked the A's out of the running.

"Y" Pool Final This Evening

The final match of the Business Men's Pocket Billiard Tournament of the Y. M. C. A. will be held at the "Y" this evening at eight o'clock when Watts Bailey and A. C. Quimby play each other for the championship of the tourney. The match will be open to the public.

In the first match of the tournament Bailey defeated Quimby by a score of 100-76. Bailey then went on to defeat every one he played to win the winners side of the tournament. After losing to Bailey, which was his only defeat, Quimby defeated every one he played for the championship of the losers side of the tourney. The tournament was a winners-losers tournament with 18 men participating and 25 matches being played.

Colonials Open Their Season on Sunday, Playing Port Jervis

The Kingston Colonials open their baseball season Sunday against the Port Jervis Red Sox at the Pan Am diamond on Albany avenue extension. Starting time is 3:15 o'clock. County Treasurer Pratt Boice will toss out the first ball.

Warren Shackett, former Saugerties ace, will make his debut with the Colonials. Shackett has been the leading pitcher of Ulster county for three years. Ted Freleigh, Frank Bruno and Johnny Cullen are other members of the Colonial pitching staff. Joey Hoffman, veteran catcher, will be behind the plate.

Port Jervis is said to have the strongest semi-pro team in that section of the state with three outstanding pitchers—Lewno, Decker and A. Keunzal. Decker is a strikeout artist and is likely to get the call against the Colonials. Their roster is a mixture of veteran players and recent high school stars. McCarthy, C. Keunzal, 2b; Orlando, 3b and Proto, ss; make up the infield. Corrado is the catcher with J. Fedorka, M. Fedorka and Fred Orlando in the outfield.

Manager Davi's infield will consist of Carpenter, 1b; Davitt or Terwilliger, 2b; Niles, 3b and Turck, ss. Tiano, Knight, Lay, Freleigh and Joyce are available for outfield duty. Bill Schwab, one of the leading arbiters in the section, will umpire all home games.

Two practice drills are scheduled for the Colonials, one Friday evening at 6 o'clock and the other Saturday at 4 p. m.

Tickets will be sold on the field for all home games.

Schedule to Date

May 17—Port Jervis Red Sox at home.
May 24—Paterson Silk Sox at home.
May 31—Highland Falls Independents at home.
May 30—Pending.
June 7—Hyde Park away.
June 14—Philmont away.
June 21—Port Jervis away.
June 28—Catskill away.

Twilight games will be booked for the Athletic Field or the Pan Am diamond as soon as the road clubs seek bookings.

Red Cross Life-Saving Tests Given at "Y"

Red Cross honors were awarded to 21 persons who passed the tests in the swimming and life saving campaign put on by the local Red Cross chapter, which closed Wednesday at the Y. M. C. A. pool.

Twenty-one passed the swimming tests, two of these passed the Junior life saving tests and five more passed the advanced Senior life saving tests. The five who passed the Senior tests were Uroh Walnes, Roger Mabbie, Willis Locke, Frank Byer and Donald Hyatt. Robert Van Valkenburgh and Robert Geisler passed the Junior tests. Those who passed the swimmers' tests were: J. Cullen, F. Sleight, P. Madden, K. Donnelly, F. Byer, D. Hyatt, E. Carey, W. Locke, R. Van Buren, A. Melville, C. Becker, J. Every, P. Gillen, P. Walnes, R. Van Valkenburgh, W. Murray, E. Terwilliger, Robert Halstein, R. Mable, R. Geisler and U. Walnes. Those who passed the swimmers' tests will each receive a Swimmers' button. Those who passed the Junior and Senior tests will each receive a certificate, an emblem for their bathing suit and an enameled pin from the Red Cross.

Charles Henke, physical director of the "Y", who gave the tests yesterday, has recently been appointed chairman of life saving and swimming of the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross. A series of courses in swimming and life saving will be held by him this summer at Williams Lake, where he will be employed as life guard. Anyone wishing to enroll in one of these courses should get in contact with Mr. Henke at Williams Lake.

At Last, Sam Parks, Jr., Open Champion, Has Made Pros Like Him

New York, May 14 (AP).—Perhaps the most forlorn figure in the golfing world today, Sam Parks, Jr., the American open champion, finally has won his victory.

When he won his title at Oakmont last year, the other pros turned away with a cool smile. The boys cried "fluke." They howled about the unfairness of Oakmont. The writers pointed out that any one of 50 pros in the country could beat him four times out of five. They said he was lucky.

Sam agreed. He was modest about his victory; in fact, he was actually embarrassed by it. He said that he was only learning the game. He went to the professionals who ridiculed him and asked them to give him lessons.

When it came time to play in the winter tournaments, he made the swing from California to Pinehurst, proving in every tournament that his critics were right. He took his beatings regularly but in good humor. He spent what little money he had and charged it off to experience.

So today, it is generally accepted that he was a flash, a lucky young upstart with a steady putting stroke, a 75 shooter, a golfer with a loose, faltering backstroke. But the pros no longer turn away from him. He has made them like him. They like his courage, and they accept him. This is the victory he wanted.

Already Counted Out.

Now he is practicing diligently for the defense of his title over Baltusrol course at Short Hills, N. J., June 4-6, and though he has already been counted out by most of the experienced critics, there are those who find themselves hoping for his success.

The greens at Baltusrol will not be as fast as they were at Oakmont, and the advantage of his fine putting touch will be minimized, but the course is not too long and he will not have to give away too much to the long hitters.

The open title each year is supposed to be worth $50,000 to the winner, allowing a few points off for exaggeration. This theoretically comes from endorsing all the products a golfer could conceivably endorse and from exhibition matches.

But Parks was asked to endorse few things and his exhibition schedule was short and financially unsuccessful. At the end of his reign as open champion, he finds himself little better off than he was at this time last year, when he was just another unknown professional.

Outstanding Field for Preakness Saturday

Baltimore, May 14 (AP).—Prospects were bright today for a 12-horse outstanding field in the $25,000 Preakness at Pimlico Saturday—and even the paddock-money handicappers were beating their brows over the outcome.

Latest nominee was the big chestnut colt, Swashbuckler, owned by Mrs. Janon Fisher, wife of the president of the Maryland Breeders Association. Both of Swashbuckler's last two wins have been sprints, but Fisher thinks he can handle the Preakness mile and three-sixteenths.

A score of horses eligible for the 46th running of the Pimlico Special are on the grounds. At least half of that number are regarded as certain starters. With Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood and Brookmeade Stable's Delphinium added, a classy even-dozen field would be ready.

Headley announced in New York he would send the winner of the 1935 Pimlico Futurity down, and there was hope that Delphinium would roll in this afternoon. The latter ripped off a smashing mile at Belmont yesterday, to win over Red Rain in 1.36 3-5.

M. L. Schwartz's Bold Venture, early book favorite to become the fifth horse to win both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, may or may not have Sonny Workman in the saddle Saturday. There were reports Workman may ride C. V. Whitney's Two Bob in the Kentucky Oak at Churchill Downs instead.

Home Leaders, Huron Indians Meet Tonight

Grunenwald's Home Leaders and the Huron Indians, whose City League game scheduled for Wednesday night was postponed on account of the rain, will meet tonight at Athletic Field at 6:15.

Friday night the Berardi A. C. will play the Kaslich A. C. in a regular League game.

The return of the Berardis to the league fold has been ratified by the managers without the formality of a special meeting. Reached by telephone Wednesday, all managers agreed to accept the re-entry of the Berardi team.

Rain Stops Kingston-Saugerties Game in The Second Inning

The game scheduled between Kingston and Saugerties High School teams went just two innings with Kingston leading 3-0 before old Jupiter Pluvius let loose a heavy downpour which sent both teams scampering for shelter.

Lou Glenn was on the mound for the first time of the season and got off to a good start allowing only one hit in the two innings played. Lou poled a long home run in the second inning for the best hit of this short fray. Tony Rhinehardt's single in the first was the only other hit for the Maroon and White. Imperato, lead-off man for Saugerties, nicked Glenn for a single accounting for their lone hit. Freleigh and Rinaldi worked for Saugerties. A return game will be played on either May 18 or 28.

Play Middletown Saturday

Kingston will be out strong Saturday afternoon to win their third straight DUSO game, encountering Middletown at the Fair Grounds. For comparison it is noted that Middletown handed Ellenville a 22-1 setback in their DUSO opener, pounding the Ellenville pitchers for 17 hits. Kingston won from Ellenville 19-0, getting a total of 16 hits including three triples and four doubles, behind Ed Schoonmaker's no hit, no run game. Middletown's regular pitchers, George Schmick and Jack Hughes, were nicked for six hits by the weak Ellenville nine, who in turn went hitless before the offerings of Kingston's third string pitcher.

With either Charlie Bock or Lou Glenn on the mound Saturday, Kingston should win in a very close game.

It doesn't seem to us that those cocky "totalitarian states" add up to such a heleva total, either.

NOW- THE SECRET!

Here's why millions say PHILLIES is the "most enjoyable cigar"

Bayuk Cigars Inc.

Gentlemen:—What magic do you do to tobacco to make PHILLIES so different from all other cigars? Why hasn't it any of that harsh, bitter, bitey taste we find in other cigars? I've never had to throw a PHILLIES away half smoked—and I've never found one that bit my tongue.

(signed) E. J.

HERE'S THE SECRET

—and it's the real reason why smokers have made PHILLIES the largest-selling cigar in America.

Even the finest cigar tobaccos contain bitter oils and other harsh elements. These must be removed if a cigar is to be mild, mellow and uniform in taste.

Ordinary curing methods haven't done—and can't do—this important job. That's why you men have been complaining about bitter, bitey cigars for years.

Bayuk uses a process that removes these harsh, bitter elements without sacrificing one iota of the pure tobacco taste. The result is a cigar you really enjoy smoking . . . smooth—mild—mellow—and with pleasing aroma.

This process was invented by Bayuk and is covered by patent protection. It is used by Bayuk exclusively.

SMOKERS—TRY THIS EXPERIMENT

Smoke one of your present brand of cigars—and then light a PHILLIES. You'll see the difference at once—and why millions of men say PHILLIES is the "most enjoyable cigar" they have ever smoked.

BAYUK'S EXCLUSIVE PROCESS

This picture shows an important unit in the exclusive Bayuk Process for extracting the bitter oils and other harsh elements from the fine tobaccos used in PHILLIES. This Process begins where other methods leave off. It enables you to enjoy the full flavor of fine tobacco without any bitter, bitey, harsh taste. Bayuk invites you to visit the factory and see this process in operation.

High School Boys Save Sinking Boat

Norman Bohan of Ulster Park, accompanied by Wallace Pfeiffer, went out in his outboard motor boat Sunday morning to watch the Albany to New York motorboat racers.

While patroling in the neighborhood of the Esopus lighthouse the boys heard a call for help and found that Boat D-36, owned and operated by Willis Overton of Norwalk, Conn., had sprung a leak and was listing badly. The engine had also gone dead.

The boys went to the rescue, took the motor and tools into their own boat and then towed Overton's boat to the east side of the river, where he telephoned for his assistant to come and get him.

The Morris Dance

A Morris dance was a grotesque dance, popular in England in the Fifteenth century and later, in which the dancers usually represented characters from the Robin Hood stories. It was brought from Spain in the reign of Edward III and was originally a military dance of the Moors, or Moriscos, hence its name.

Broadway: "Gentle Julia", Jane Withers, plus Tom Brown, Marsha Hunt, Jackie Searl, Francis Ford and Harry Holman have a glorious time of it in this Booth Tarkington story of a small town in Indiana and of a little girl who gets into mischief in every thing she does and says. When her pretty aunt is undecided just who to marry, little Miss Withers jumps in and helps her make a decision that proves popular with nobody. The whole show is a riot of laughter and fun. A Fox picture directed by John Mylstone.

Kingston: "Boulder Dam" and "You May Be Next." A whole carload of excitement for no special reason is the fate of the "Boulder Dam" feature at the Kingston, the amazing story of a lazy mechanic who accidentally kills a man and flees to the west where he gets a job on the new Boulder Dam. Hiding his past under a different name, he falls in love and becomes a bundle of energy and starts saving the lives of people with almost unbelievable regularity. For this, he is forgiven his past life and love triumphs over all once again. Ross Alexander, Patricia Ellis, Lyle Talbot and Eddie Acuff are featured. "You may Be Next." All about a smooth criminal who discovers a shrieking radio wave that spoils all the big broadcasting companies' programs. This wave makes such a racket that radio programs all over the nation are wrecked and the criminal demands a big sack of money if the broadcasters want the noise to hush. How they catch the criminal is the main part of the play, garnished up with the usual love interest. Ann Southern, Lloyd Nolan, Douglass Dumbrille and John Aldredge are in the cast.

Orpheum: "Charlie Chan's Secret" and "Rio Rattler". Charlie Chan has one of his most momentous problems to solve in the first film at the Orpheum and before he finishes his journey through the mazes of a murder mystery Mr. Chan and the audience will show signs of strain. The show moves in the best Chan tradition, which means a careful attention to plot, acting and interest. Warner Oland is at home in the role of Charlie Chan and the play is exciting and entertaining all the way through. "Rio Rattler" is the other feature with Tom Tyler starred.

Tomorrow.

Broadway: Same.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "A Feather in Her Hat" and "Lawless Range". Two different types of pictures are seen on the Orpheum screen, the first an emotional bit of acting genius by Pauline Lord in the main assignment, the second a wild and wooly tale of the great outdoors with John Wayne riding to love, triumph and glory.

ACCUSED STOLL KIDNAPER

This is the first posed picture known to have been made of Thomas H. Robinson, accused of kidnaping Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, since he fled 20 months ago It was taken by federal agents in Louisville after his return from California. (Associated Press Photo)

Robinson Hustled To Atlanta Today

Atlanta, Ga., May 14 (AP)—The last of the kidnapers of the "big money" abduction era of 1933 35 to be captured was hustled under heavy guard today to the steel and stone of Atlanta federal penitentiary

Thomas H Robinson, Jr., 29, under sentence of life imprisonment, at Louisville, Ky., late yesterday was put aboard a train for Atlanta after he pleaded guilty to a charge of kidnaping Mrs Alice Speed Stoll in 1934 for $50,000 ransom

His arraignment, and sentencing by Federal Judge Elwood Hamilton came within 48 hours of his arrest by federal agents in Glendale, Calif

In the ten preceding days the department of justice agents had brought to heel Alvin Karpis and Harry Campbell, wanted for the $300,000 Edward G Bremer and William Hamm kidnapings of Minnesota

The elusive Robinson evaded capture for 19 months while spending the ransom freely in night clubs and "hot-spots" from one side of the nation to the other

His parents were reported to have hopes their son might win a parole after serving 15 years Federal officials said, however, Robinson never would be eligible for parole

Mrs Stoll, wife of a wealthy oil executive, was beaten by her captor during her imprisonment in an Indianapolis apartment, which would permit a death sentence under the Lindbergh law.

Robinson entered his plea in such a low tone that U S Attorney Bunk Gardner, standing nearby, could not hear it

Judge Hamilton, however, ordered "that you be confined for the term of your natural life" in a voice audible to all the hundreds of persons who crowded the courtroom

An insanity plea from Robinson would not have been surprising to officials as he twice has been committed to state institutions for the insane

Progress in manufacturing, fabricating and preserving steel has steadily added to its life, so that the average useful service of the steel used in this country is now more than twice as long as it was 50 years ago

Bricks for Barracks

Peiping May 14 (AP)—The Chinese press charged today that bricks from China's great wall, one of the wonders of the world and long regarded as the mightiest achievement of human manual labor, are going into Japanese military barracks Because Japanese soldiers are taking the bricks from the wall to build army barracks at Kupeikow, the reports said the ancient structure seems in danger of at least partial disintegration

Will Add Candlepower To Lighting System

Roach stated that the estimate they had made was an estimate to build a street with suitable material and that the estimate was conservative rather than too high.

It was brought out that the state is paying approximately $65,000 a mile for concrete roads.

To Move Gasocutor

The gasocutor in the rear of the municipal building on East O'Reilly street which is used to send stray dogs and cats to dog and cat heaven, should be moved to another location in the opinion of the board and it was decided to locate it adjoining the city incinerating plant on Wilbur avenue. The board decided to request the gas company to extend the gas main to the incinerator plant. The nearest gas main is within 300 feet of the incinerator.

Hudson and Union Streets

It was brought out that the WPA has ceased the work of reconstructing Hudson street and West Union street, between Broadway and Wurts street, and the board believed that both streets should receive the top coat before the foundations that have been laid went to pieces.

The city engineer was instructed to again take the matter up with the WPA in an effort to hurry the work.

Tent Caterpillars

Attention was called to the large quantity of tent caterpillars in the city and the board decided to ask property owners to cooperate in destroying the menace to trees by burning out the caterpillars.

Two methods were suggested to save the trees after the tents have been destroyed by burning One was to place a strip of flypaper around the base of the tree and the other to soak a cloth in crank case oil and tie it around the base of the tree. Both these methods are being used by some of the members of the board on their own properties with good results.

The board has not the authority to enter upon private property to destroy the pests which is why they are asking property owners to assist in wiping them out.

To Speed Up Traffic.

Commissioner Roach said that his attention had been called to the fact that some of the busses were not using the bus stops to receive and discharge passengers, but were stopping the bus out in the street, thus slowing up traffic, especially along Broadway. He also thought it would be a good idea that when a bus approached a street intersection where traffic lights were installed that when the light was green the bus proceed on through, stopping on the farther corner to receive and discharge passengers instead of the present method of stopping at the near side of the traffic light when it was green to do so.

The board instructed Secretary Gronemeyer to write the Kingston City Transportation Company that the busses were expected to use the bus stops which had been designated. A communication will also be sent to the traffic control committee of the common council outlining the suggestion made in regard to busses stopping on the far corner when the traffic light was green as the bus approached a street intersection.

Board Meetings Public.

The resolution adopted by the common council requesting that the council be invited to meet with the board, was read, and the board members expressed the opinion that it was not necessary to invite the aldermen to meet with the board as all board meetings were open to the public and the aldermen were welcome to attend any of the board sessions.

In Need of a Garage.

The city engineer was authorized to rent a garage in which to house the motor equipment at a rental not to exceed $25 a month. The present garage facilities of the city are not sufficient to house all of the new and expensive equipment.

Pine Grove Avenue.

Superintendent Conway at last month's meeting was asked to prepare and submit an estimate of the cost of removing two of the "islands" from the center of Pine Grove avenue, near Broadway, to afford more room in that street for traffic. He submitted an estimate of cost amounting to $2,694.40.

It was brought out at the meeting that the matter had first been considered when an alderman had taken the matter up, asking that it be considered. The alderman who had proposed the project, it was said, did not vote in favor of it when the matter came up at the last council session when the aldermen went on record as opposed to the removal of any of the "islands" in Pine Grove avenue.

The board decided that no action would be taken in the matter and that the street would be left as it now is.

The following communication was sent to the board by Alderman James E. Connelly, of the Ninth ward:

Kingston, N. Y.
May 11, 1936

To The Honorable,
The Board of Public Works,
Kingston, N. Y.
Gentlemen:

The purpose of this communication is to remind your Honorable Body that Pine Grove avenue was reconstructed some years ago as an Avenue of Remembrance for the commemoration and veneration of all the dead of the City of Kingston wherever interred.

Being in the geographical center of the city, its close proximity to Broadway and its width were the reasons for the selection of this street by those who conceived the idea of the creation of this memorial, to be dedicated to the deceased citizens, whose living trees would—with the coming of Spring—bud and ultimately don a new and fresh green foliage to yearly admonish and remind those who might travel on or be within view of this Avenue of Remembrance to ever keep fresh and green the memory of those who have passed on to their eternal reward.

The citizens of the Ninth Ward who reside in the vicinity are especially—as well as thousands of others from the different sections of the city—opposed to the removal of any part of this memorial to convert the space into a parking grounds, and through their alderman, the Common Council at its meeting of May 5, 1936, also went on record as being opposed "to the removal of any part of the center portion of Pine Grove avenue" by a vote of 9 ayes, 1 no, 2 being excused and 1 member being absent.

Probably the most satisfactory solution would be to fill in the land back of the plants interested in obtaining more parking space for their employes' cars. In conversation with those who hold executive positions at some of the interested concerns, I was advised that suitable land is available for parking purposes These concerns hold title to the lands.

I am also informed that several applications, to your Honorable Body, for fill for these lands have gone unheeded. With the rebuilding of several of the city streets this summer, no doubt, there will be plenty of dirt that will have to be carted away somewhere. Here is a place where it could be put to a useful and needed purpose.

A thought along this line may help to solve the parking problem in this section by taking the cars off this street. Even if it became necessary to use the estimated cost of the removal of part of the center portion of Pine Grove avenue to build parking space adjacent to this street

The city of Kingston has spent considerable money in the construction of this Memorial Driveway to perpetuate and keep sacred the memory of our dead, and I trust your Honorable Body will not desecrate this memorial by removing any part of it to make a parking grounds and thereby destroying the fine and beautiful sentiments that prompted its erection.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

Very truly yours,
JAMES E. CONNELLY,
Alderman Ninth Ward.

Red Lights at Bridge

Commissioner Wetterhahn of the fire board at the last meeting of the Public Works Board had sent in a communication suggesting that the board consider the installation of an automatic traffic control of the traffic lights at the Rondout Creek Bridge, so that the lights could be turned all red from the Cornell fire house when the apparatus was leaving the fire house to answer an alarm.

Superintendent Conway reported that he had received an estimate of the cost of installation which would cost approximately $93. The traffic control worked automatically and the red period was maintained for a sufficient length of time for the fire apparatus to leave the engine house and pass over the street interesction

The board favored the installation and ordered it done.

Planted 835 Trees

Superintendent Conway submitted his monthly report of work done during the month In the report was an item that stated that 835 trees had been planted along the city streets. The work had been done by youths from the National Youth Administration under the supervision of the tree man of the board and the city tree committee.

Mr Conway also reported the opening of a tree nursery on the City Home property where 730 trees, donated by interested citizens, had already been set out.

Owing to the acts of vandalism at the tree nursery in Hasbrouck Park the board had decided to open a new nursery at the City Home, and sufficient land had been given the city by the welfare board for that purpose.

Object to Standard

It was brought out at the meeting that the uptown merchants had requested that the present traffic standard at the corner of North Front street and Wall street be taken out as it was difficult for large trucks to make the turn around the standard.

The board decided to remove the large standard and replace it with traffic lights installed on poles. One pole will be positioned about in front of the Woolsey clothing store on North Front street and the other on the Marblestone corner on Wall street.

To Make Inspection

The board plans to meet next Tuesday afternoon to make a tour of inspection of the city streets.

Several routine matters were disposed of and bills audited and the board then adjourned.

Federation Meeting

The May meeting of the executive committee of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs will be held at the Y. W. C. A on Saturday afternoon beginning exactly at 2 o'clock. May Day Observance At High School Friday

Tomorrow May Day will be observed at Kingston High School with the crowning of a Queen and the holding of court when dancers, jugglers, tumblers and racers will perform. There will also be the usual winding of the May pole and the Maroon prizes for excellence in literary composition will be awarded. The activities have been planned to start at 10 o'clock, when the Queen and her attendants will march from the rear of the school to the throne, which will, as usual, be located on the rocks overlooking the athletic field. The order of the program follows:

Prime Minister's address and coming of May Queen.
May Queen's welcome to the public.
Awarding of maroon prizes.
Boys' Chariot Race.
Girls' Chariot Race.
Merry Sailor Dance.
Girls' hoop Race.
Boys' tumbling and other stunts.
Boys Harmonica Band Numbers.
Boys and girls' comical race.
Sixth period gym girls' march—Pyramid Drill and winding of Maypole.

This year the senior class selected as their queen, Miss Rachael Mac Daniel of Bearsville, while Miss Hermine Lawatsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil H. Lawatsch of 109 East Chester street, will be the maid of honor. For the attendants the class selected Miss Marjory Osterhoudt, Miss Ruth Watzka, Miss Elsa McLean, Miss Barbara Shultis, Miss Doris Wiren and Miss Dorothy Greene. The senior class president, William Byrne, will of course serve the Queen as Prime Minister.

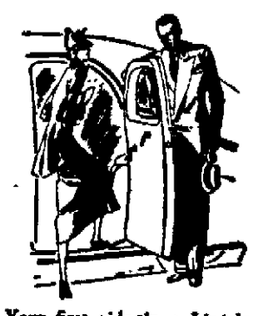
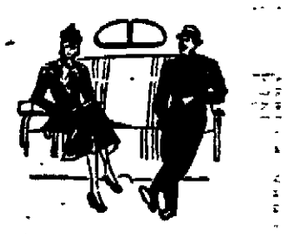
20 MINUTES packed with New Ideas!



Your first ride in a Lincoln-Zephyr is your first experience with a wholly new kind of motor car. So prepare yourself to meet a lot of new ideas in rapid succession!

The car's 12-cylinder engine performance, for instance. And the almost uncanny way it hugs the road, even on turns and over rough going. Then there's riding quality that's almost like flying.



And—for all its modern streamlines—the seats are wide and the roof is generously high—while visibility, from every seat, sweeps around to every side.

This is not just a new car—but a completely distinctive one. In looks, in name, and in performance, it represents a new measure of satisfaction at modern price. Let us send a car around for you to drive today.
